How Kaffirs Work.

What "working like a nigger"—that is, a negro in South Africa—really means has been explained by one who has seen this wonder. He says that the phrase is one of the silliest and most inexact ever coined. "A gang of Kaffirs," he said, "were at work. They were loading rails on a truck, and they did it as though they were burying their dead. At the head of the gang walked a sort of chief chanting the most lugubrious dirge ever heard. At a crawling pace he led his men to the rails. Then came a long pause. This was to enable the singing head man to finish the first rail. When the Kaffirs got tired of waiting they bent down and picked up the rail, their movements keeping time with the funeral march. When at last the rail was hoisted on the men's shoulders the singer changed the measure to a chant of triumph. As a matter of fact, two dock laborers could easily have done all the work that was done by these eight negroes."—Indianapolis News.

GOODNESS, like charity, begins at home. No one is excepted from its requirements, and no one can fairly find fault with the world unless his or her own part is thoroughly fulfilled. PERIOD FURNITURE

Furnishing the Home AT MODERATE COST

It is a mistaken idea, entertained by many people, that things to be tasteful must needs be expensive. If this was ever the case, it is not now, because the manufacturers are making, and we are carrying in stock furniture which is made upon exactly as good lines as the most expensive furniture which is bought. A taste for what is known as Period Furniture prevails. This is furniture which is made after the designs of English master craftsmen of the XVII. century—Sheraton, Chippendale, Heppelwhite and the Adam Brothers.

CONNIE MACK'S CAREER IS AN EVENTFUL ONE

Manager Connie Mack of the Champion Athletics.

Cornelius McGillicuddy, the man the fans never see, recently celebrated his fifty-first anniversary.

In his quiet, retiring way, the "Sphinx of the diamond," the recipient of hundreds of messages of congratulation, observed his fifty-first year on earth at his home, the town he has done so much for during the last dozen years. His record is one long list of banner achievements, all gained by steady and conscientious work. The "Master Mind of Baseball," as he is known around the circuit, is of such high character it is hard to praise him. A look into his past reveals a life fraught with square deals and honorable deeds.

Connie Mack was born at East Brookfield, Mass., December 23, 1862. He introduced himself into baseball as a catcher for the Meriden, Conn., team in 1884. He received his first assignment as manager in 1894, when he took hold of the reins of the Pittsburgh club. His great career took definite form in 1901 when the present manager of the Athletics was given the leadership of the Quaker team. His ability then began to force itself to the front.

Following is a brief review of his baseball career:

His List of Jobs.
1884—Broke into the game as catcher for Meriden, Conn., team.
1885-6—Did backstop duty for Hartford, Conn., team.
1886-9—With the Washington club of the National league.
1890—This year he donned the mitt and chest protector for Buffalo club.
1891-2—Appeared back of bat.
1894—Became manager of the Pittsburgh club finishing in seventh place.

1895—As pilot of Pittsburgh his club again finished seventh.

1896—Pittsburgh, with Mack still at the helm, finished sixth.

1897-1901—Held managerial reins of the Milwaukee team of the Western league.

1901—Began his duties as manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, which he continues to hold. Finished fourth this season.

First Pennant in 1902.

1902—Gave Philadelphia a championship, after a long wait of 20 years. Of that great team many have gone their various ways, but Eddie Plank and Harry Davis are still with the Mackmen.

1903—Finished second to Boston.

1904—Dropped to fifth place.

1905—Won American league title, but lost world's series to New York.

1906—Finished second to Chicago.

1907—After terrific struggle with Detroit, Mack's team again finished second.

1908—Dropped to sixth place.

1909—His team was in the fray again to the bitter end, being nosed out by old rivals, the Detroit Tigers.

1910—His team proved the sensation of the country, winning American league championship, and beat Chicago Cubs for world's title.

1911—Again captured American league pennant and world's title, beating New York in latter event.

1912—Got away to poor start and slipped back to third place.

1913—Captured fifth American league and third world's series title, beating New York Giants in latter event.

hand was looked upon as a star of the first order, but since then he has failed to live up to his reputation. He has really had but one good year in the American league and on that his fame rests. ## CONNIE MACK'S CAREER IS AN EVENTFUL ONE

Manager Connie Mack of the Champion Athletics.

Cornelius McGillicuddy, the man the fans never see, recently celebrated his fifty-first anniversary.

In his quiet, retiring way, the "Sphinx of the diamond," the recipient of hundreds of messages of congratulation, observed his fifty-first year on earth at his home, the town he has done so much for during the last dozen years. His record is one long list of banner achievements, all gained by steady and conscientious work. The "Master Mind of Baseball," as he is known around the circuit, is of such high character it is hard to praise him. A look into his past reveals a life fraught with square deals and honorable deeds.

Connie Mack was born at East Brookfield, Mass., December 23, 1862. He introduced himself into baseball as a catcher for the Meriden, Conn., team in 1884. He received his first assignment as manager in 1894, when he took hold of the reins of the Pittsburgh club. His great career took definite form in 1901 when the present manager of the Athletics was given the leadership of the Quaker team. His ability then began to force itself to the front.

Following is a brief review of his baseball career:

His List of Jobs.

1884—Broke into the game as catcher for Meriden, Conn., team.

1885-6—Did backstop duty for Hartford, Conn., team.

1886-9—With the Washington club of the National league.

1890—This year he donned the mitt and chest protector for Buffalo club.

1891-2—Appeared back of bat.

1894—Became manager of the Pittsburgh club finishing in seventh place.

1895—As pilot of Pittsburgh his club again finished seventh.

1896—Pittsburgh, with Mack still at the helm, finished sixth.

1897-1901—Held managerial reins of the Milwaukee team of the Western league.

1901—Began his duties as manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, which he continues to hold. Finished fourth this season.

First Pennant in 1902.

1902—Gave Philadelphia a championship, after a long wait of 20 years. Of that great team many have gone their various ways, but Eddie Plank and Harry Davis are still with the Mackmen.

1903—Finished second to Boston.

1904—Dropped to fifth place.

1905—Won American league title, but lost world's series to New York.

1906—Finished second to Chicago.

1907—After terrific struggle with Detroit, Mack's team again finished second.

1908—Dropped to sixth place.

1909—His team was in the fray again to the bitter end, being nosed out by old rivals, the Detroit Tigers.

1910—His team proved the sensation of the country, winning American league championship, and beat Chicago Cubs for world's title.

1911—Again captured American league pennant and world's title, beating New York in latter event.

1912—Got away to poor start and slipped back to third place.

1913—Captured fifth American league and third world's series title, beating New York Giants in latter event.

216-GAME SCHEDULE

The Pacific league has started its season. There's some ball league. It cut in on March 31, and doesn't quit until October 25—sometimes later, and its schedule includes about two hundred and sixteen games. Many an athlete goes joyously to the coast, lured by the climate and a guaranty of salary as large as that he got at home. He gets it, too, for the coast magnate's word is as good as gold—but how that old boy does work for his shekels! When he discovers that he has to go a route of 216 games for the coin he made in 154 games back East, he emits a roar like a pained lion, but it's all too late. Incidentally, the theory of many major league leaders, that a man will go stale and lose his pepper if he plays beyond the usual schedule, gets something of a knock in California. Many and many a star of the coast league is called to the fast company, and if the 216-game stunt ever spoiled any of them for their work the following season it has never been recorded.

Bench Managers Scarce.

Bench managers will be at a premium in the Southern Michigan league this season, the advent of Topsy Hartael and Ed Smith to the league's managerial forces increasing the number of playing leaders in the circuit. Hartael will hold down a regular berth in the Toledo outfield, while Smith will take his turn in the box for his South Bend club. Both have a number of years of good baseball yet allotted them, although veterans in point of service. Other playing managers in the league this season are McKernan, Battle Creek; Holmes, Saginaw; Jenkins, Bay City; Wagner, Kalamazoo, and Cristall, Adrian; Meyers of Jackson, Burke of Flint and Morrissey of Lansing will pilot their clubs from the bench.

Fahey Goes to Victoria.

Howard Fahey, the Los Angeles infielder, who played in the California State league last season, has been turned over to Victoria by Manager Dillon. He will go to the Bees in place of Wetell, who refuses to report.

Jesse Tannehill a Manager.

Jesse Tannehill, former big league pitcher, has been given the manager-ship of the Portsmouth State league baseball club.

RUSSELL FORD NOT MISSED

Former Yankee Spitzball Artist, Who Jumped to Buffalo Federal Team, Has Lost His Grip.

Manager Frank Chance of the Yankees will be without the services of Russell Ford, once considered the best of the Yankee twirlers, this year. It is reported, however, that Chance is not shedding many tears over the departure of Ford to the Federal league. A few years back the left-

FACE TO FACE WITH WAR.

The United States is going to fight Mexico. At this writing it seems certain that war will be declared by Congress tonight or tomorrow. It Huerta backs down at the last moment it will mean only a postponement, since he will be required to apologize for other insults to the flag and will surely make a stand at some point. His game is easy to see through. He sees that his army is no match for the forces of Villa, and that the latter will eventually capture him and shoot him, unless the United States intervenes. If our forces capture him he will not be killed, but will undoubtedly be allowed to leave Mexico, taking with him the fortune which he has been able to accumulate during his reign. In other words, he is using our nation as a cat's paw to pull his chestnuts from the fire.

This situation is exasperating to American citizens. War is a horrible thing at best, but it is doubly so when the pretext is such an intangible thing as "an insult to the flag," which may or may not have occurred, and which in any event was the work of ignorant underlings. A war to avenge the murder, robbery and outrage of American citizens would have more sense to it, as it would be a lesson to semi-civilized peoples all over the world, while the idea which now goes forth is that we think more of a piece of bunting than we do of human lives. This is the result of the blundering policy of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, who put in effect their namby-pamby theories against the judgment of all the experienced statesmen of the world. In the language of Jeremiah, they have been "saying, Peace, peace; when there is no peace." There is no end into the future. Villa is worse than Huerta, although his specialty is maltreating persons instead of insulting flags. His successor may be still worse than he is.

However, whatever we may think the clumsy mismanagement which gotten us into this scrape, the thing for good citizens to do is forget mistakes and stand by the administration. Failure to do so is treachery to the nation. According to "Big Bill" Haywood the Western Federation of Miners and the I. W. W. have arranged for a general strike as a protest against war. If the plot is carried out it will be a good thing. A number of anarchist leaders will find out what the punishment for treason is, and the millions of plain Americans who have been more or less impressed by socialistic teachings will see the true nature of these agitators. General Sherman said that war is hell, but that does not mean that it has no good features. The existence of hell has had a very beneficial indirect effect upon human morals.

"All persons who prove themselves by their acts to be anti-social should be removed from society," says Katherine B. Davis, Commissioner of Corrections of New York City. The sentiment is not entirely original, and it is always heard after assaults upon public men, and frequently after ordinary murders. The trouble is that no one has been able to devise methods for carrying out the program. We have potential murderers right here in Kingston and there are but few of our readers who could not point out one of them. The probabilities, however, are that not one of them will ever commit the deed for which he is mentally fit. Imagine the howl which would go up if anybody tried to remove one of them from society! What judge would have dared to commit Mahoney, the man who shot at Mayor Mitchell? There are things for which there is no help.

An unprecedented feature in religious practices was introduced during the session of the Troy Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Saratoga Sunday. Eleven young ministers were to be ordained, and Bishop Leete requested their wives to kneel beside them during the ceremony, saying that the work of the minister's wife was just as important as that of her husband. We are inclined to agree with this statement, but it occurs to us that the good bishop did not go far enough. Before a man can be ordained as a clergyman he has to spend several years in study to fit himself, but the minister's wife is expected to perform her equally important duties without any training whatsoever. This is illogical, but not more so than the notion entertained by so many people that the ordinary housewife is fully competent to go to the polls and vote on political issues to which she has never given any attention.

A YOUNG SWIMMER.

(By Our Woman Editor.)
Thanks to her skill as a swimmer and her fearlessness when thrown in the water, a little six-year-old miss at Hot Springs, Va., looks at the tumbling cascades and the deep pool that threatened to engulf her, glad and proud that she was taught how to swim while almost a baby in years. And doubtless her joy and gratitude are as nothing when compared with the thanks in the hearts of her parents, for they know how remorselessly cruel the rocks and the waters may be.

The child was leaning over a bridge looking at the sunlight playing upon the cascades, but she leaned too far and toppled over. No one saw her fall and within a brief second or so she followed a cascade in its 15-foot drop into the deep pool underneath.

Ahead of her was another cascade with a mightier drop, and the little girl desperately devoted her strength to keep away from the plunge, but the tug was growing too much for the young swimmer and her strength was fast giving out, when a man came through the gorge and saw her plight. She was within a few inches of the second cascade when rescued, and the rocks beneath would not have spared the young life. But the man hastily swam to her assistance, the rocks and the waters were robbed of a dear little victim, and where the story might have been tragic, it is only illustrative.

In its last analysis it was the man who saved her—but if she had not been able to swim? Many a little six-year-old, many at 16, at 40, and many in-between, would have gone swirling down to their death in the first deep pool, for the lack of a few belted, experienced strokes in the water.

Down in Virginia the open-air season begins quite early, but it will begin here very soon, and then stories will drift in, from the ponds, the lakes, the rivers, the seas, of boys and girls, men and women saved from the clutch of the waters because early in life they were taught how to swim. But others will come with an ending quite different, because never yet the summer season that did not have its long list of drowning accidents, many of which might have been averted had the little folk, the big folk and all received instructions in the art of swimming.

Almost every boy and a great many girls long for a chance to sport about in the water, and some boys long so desperately in the face of parental disapproval that they slip away to a forbidden pool or pond, lake or river, and before the grown-ups have any suspicion of what is happening, the art has passed into their keeping.

Of course, it is all wrong because much can happen to boys alone on the waters, but it is wrong to keep the training away from them, and away from the girls, for the matter of that. Sometimes a few sturdy strokes may carry one to safety, but if the strokes are unknown and if no one else is swimming by to help, one might as well be in mid-ocean, for all the good of the near-by shore.

And it is a pitiful "if" that comes to mind when boys and others are swallowed by merciless waters when they might have been saved if they had been taught the motions. It is all very well to tell inexperienced folk "just to keep their heads" if mishap throws them into the water, and to remember the simple swimming rules; but, pressed by the crowding water and fast-rising fears, who ever keeps his head in the water unless he knows how to swim?

We grown-ups that have never learned, we women particularly, find plenty of excuses for remaining in ignorance; and we go on trusting that fate may be kind and may keep us away from the waters. And if we are content to go on in ignorance, that is for us to decide; but with boys and girls, that is different. Nobody knows what may await us or them, but it is so simple a thing to teach a child to be prepared in case of emergency that he ought to be urged to learn rather than be familiarized with that old refrain,—"but don't go near the water." Urged? Generally, it is a case, with the boy at least, only of "letting," for one can hardly fancy the necessity of urging a healthy, active boy to a swimming pool!

And this is merely one more urge to parents.

FRANCES SHAFER.

NEW DREADNAUGHT QUEEN OF U. S. WARSHIPS—U. S. DREADNAUGHT NEW YORK.

This vessel, which is now the most powerful battleship afloat, has just been placed in commission at the Brooklyn navy yard where she is now getting in readiness to be ordered to Mexico. The boat is equipped with ten 14-inch guns, the biggest guns ever mounted on a warship. Two of these guns are in each of the ship's five turrets. She has four submarine torpedo tubes, twenty-one 5-inch guns and her engines generate 30,000 horse power.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.

April 19, 1894.—Rev. William A. Heath died at his home in Brooklyn. John Stuart and Joanna Tafel-docker married.

20.—Infant daughter of John Rothery died at her home on East Chester street.

April 19, 1904.—Abram V. De-Graff and Miss Marguerite Hill married at Bloomington.

First shad caught in river at Fort Ewen.

Class of Kingston met in Fair Street Reformed Church.

20.—Thomas Ryan killed by Wall-kill train at Greenkill avenue bridge.

Harry H. Flemming and Miss Harriet N. Sherwood married.

Mansion House sold to A. P. Crowley.

Reunion of Old Company B held. The Rev. Anthony Strube transferred from St. Peter's Church to New York.

Ring Separation Suit.

D. G. Atkins will start for Ogdensburg, N. Y., Tuesday morning where he will act as referee in suit of Mary A. Ring vs. John H. Ring. Mrs. Ring has brought an action against her husband for failure to support and provide for her and her children. Mrs. Ring resides in the city of Kingston. Van Etten & Cook are the attorneys for Mrs. Ring. Herman J. Donivan of Ogdensburg is the attorney for John H. Ring, the husband.

Mr. Hungerford on Deck.

Relying on a notice sent out by a steamship company The Freeman printed an item that C. A. Hungerford, proprietor of The Eagle Hotel, had sailed for Europe. Mr. Hungerford has not sailed for Europe or any other place and somebody must have been "stringing" the steamboat company. Business is too lively at The Eagle to permit the proprietor to leave on an extended vacation.

Burned by Gas Stove.

While leaning over to light the gas stove Mrs. Raymond Smith was burned about the face at her home, 159 Main street on Saturday evening when the gas flared up suddenly. Dr. Bryant was summoned and attended to her injuries. The burns are not considered serious.

How Fear Paralyzes.

Fear ties our hands, lames us and befores our minds, so that we do nothing lest we make mistakes. Pessimism is fear carried to the last degree, and the pessimist is not satisfied with stopping his own activity, but tries to prevent others from doing anything because he sees all the dark side of life and none of the bright side—Mischance.

"Penny Wise, Pound Foolish."

We heard on the street the other day of a man who claimed he was too poor to take his horse paper, but all the same he read a notice in one of our county papers, telling how to prevent a horse from slobbering, and sent for the recipe. When the $1.50 worth of information came it said: "Teach your horse how to spit!"—Spencer (Ore.) Journal.

Rain as a Fertilizer.

Rain, especially when accompanied by thunder and lightning, has a fertilizing effect upon the soil. There is almost always ammonia in the air and this is carried by the rain into the earth. It has been calculated that a quart of rain water may contain about one-eighth of a grain of ammonia.

Romance of Modern Life.

"But, Helen, how did you make the acquaintance of your second husband?" "It was quite romantic. I was out walking with my first when my second husband came along in a motor and ran him down. That was the beginning of our friendship."—Tit-Bits.

FACE TO FACE WITH WAR.

The United States is going to fight Mexico. At this writing it seems certain that war will be declared by Congress tonight or tomorrow. It Huerta backs down at the last moment it will mean only a postponement, since he will be required to apologize for other insults to the flag and will surely make a stand at some point. His game is easy to see through. He sees that his army is no match for the forces of Villa, and that the latter will eventually capture him and shoot him, unless the United States intervenes. If our forces capture him he will not be killed, but will undoubtedly be allowed to leave Mexico, taking with him the fortune which he has been able to accumulate during his reign. In other words, he is using our nation as a cat's paw to pull his chestnuts from the fire.

This situation is exasperating to American citizens. War is a horrible thing at best, but it is doubly so when the pretext is such an intangible thing as "an insult to the flag," which may or may not have occurred, and which in any event was the work of ignorant underlings. A war to avenge the murder, robbery and outrage of American citizens would have more sense to it, as it would be a lesson to semi-civilized peoples all over the world, while the loss which now goes forth is that we sink more of a piece of hunting than we do of human lives. This is the result of the blundering policy of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, who put in effect their namby-pamby theories against the judgment of all the experienced statesmen of the world. In the language of Jeremiah they have been "saying, Peace, peace; when there is no peace." There is no end into the future. Villa is worse than Huerta, although his specialty is mistreating persons instead of insulting flags. His successor may be still worse than he is.

However, whatever we may think of the clumsy mismanagement which has gotten us into this scrape, the thing for good citizens to do is forget mistakes and stand by the administration. Failure to do so is treachery to the nation. According to "Big Bill" Haywood the Western Federation of Miners and the I. W. W. have arranged for a general strike as a protest against war. If the plot is carried out it will be a good thing. A number of anarchist leaders will find out what the punishment for treason is, and the millions of plain Americans who have been more or less impressed by socialistic teachings will see the true nature of these agitators. General Sherman said that war is hell, but that does not mean that it has no good features. The existence of hell has had a very beneficial indirect effect upon human morals.

"All persons who prove themselves by their acts to be anti-social should be removed from society," says Katherine B. Davis, Commissioner of Corrections of New York City. The sentiment is not entirely original, and it is always heard after assaults upon public men, and frequently after ordinary murders. The trouble is that no one has been able to devise methods for carrying out the program. We have potential murderers right here in Kingston and there are but few of our readers who could not point out one of them. The probabilities, however, are that not one of them will ever commit the deed for which he is mentally fit. Imagine the howl which would go up if anybody tried to remove one of them from society! What judge would have dared to commit Mahoney, the man who shot at Mayor Mitchell? There are things for which there is no help.

An unprecedented feature in religious practices was introduced during the session of the Troy Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Saratoga Sunday. Eleven young ministers were to be ordained, and Bishop Leete requested their wives to kneel beside them during the ceremony, saying that the work of the minister's wife was just as important as that of her husband. We are inclined to agree with this statement, but it occurs to us that the good bishop did not go far enough. Before a man can be ordained as a clergyman he has to spend several years in study to fit himself, but the minister's wife is expected to perform her equally important duties without any training whatsoever. This is illogical, but not more so than the notion entertained by so many people that the ordinary housewife is fully competent to go to the polls and vote on political issues to which she has never given any attention.

A YOUNG SWIMMER.

(By Our Woman Editor.)

Thanks to her skill as a swimmer and her fearlessness when thrown in the water, a little six-year-old miss at Hot Springs, Va., looks at the tumbling cascades and the deep pool that threatened to engulf her, glad and proud that she was taught how to swim while almost a baby in years. And doubtless her joy and gratitude are as nothing when compared with the thanks in the hearts of her parents, for they know how remorselessly cruel the rocks and the waters may be.

The child was leaning over a bridge looking at the sunlight playing upon the cascades, but she leaned too far and toppled over. No one saw her fall and within a brief second or so she followed a cascade in its 15-foot drop into the deep pool underneath.

Ahead of her was another cascade with a mightier drop, and the little girl desperately devoted her strength to keep away from the plunge, but the tug was growing too much for the young swimmer and her strength was fast giving out, when a man came through the gorge and saw her plight. She was within a few inches of the second cascade when rescued, and the rocks beneath would not have spared the young life. But the man hastily swam to her assistance, the rocks and the waters were robbed of a dear little victim, and where the story might have been tragic, it is only illustrative.

In its last analysis it was the man who saved her—but if she had not been able to swim? Many a little six-year-old, many at 16, at 60, and many in-between, would have gone swirling down to their death in the first deep pool, for the lack of a few bold, experienced strokes in the water.

Down in Virginia the open-air season begins quite early, but it will begin here very soon, and then stories will drift in, from the ponds, the lakes, the rivers, the seas, of boys and girls, men and women saved from the clutch of the waters because early in life they were taught how to swim. But others will come with an ending quite different, for we have never yet the summer season that did not have its long list of drowning accidents, many of which might have been averted had the little folk, the big folk and all received instructions in the art of swimming.

Of course, it is all wrong because much can happen to boys alone on the waters, but it is wrong to keep the training away from them, and away from the girls, for the matter of that. Sometimes a few sturdy strokes may carry one to safety, but if the strokes are unknown and if no one else is swimming by to help, one might as well be in mid-ocean, for all the good of the near-by shore.

And it is a pitiful "if" that comes to mind when boys and others are swallowed by merciless waters when they might have been saved if they had been taught the motions. It is all very well to tell inexperienced folk "just to keep their heads" if mishap throws them into the water and to remember the simple swimming rules; but, pressed by the crowding water and fast-rising fears, who ever keeps his head in the water unless he knows how to swim?

We grown-ups that have never learned, we women particularly, find plenty of excuses for remaining in ignorance; and we go on trusting that fate may be kind and may keep us away from the waters. And if we are content to go on in ignorance, that is for us to decide; but with boys and girls, that is different. Nobody knows what may await us or them, but it is so simple a thing to teach a child to be prepared in case of emergency that he ought to be urged to learn rather than be familiarized with that old refrain—"but don't go near the water." Urged? Generally, it is a case, with the boy at least, of "letting," for one can hardly fancy the necessity of urging a healthy, active boy to a swimming pool!

And this is merely one more urge to parents.

FRANCES SHAFER.

DOLLAR DAY WEDNESDAY

The great Dollar Day carnival of bargains brought about in Kingston by the merchants will be ushered in Wednesday morning. The stores will be open all day and until late in the evening, giving the thrifty buyers of this vicinity the most remarkable opportunity ever presented to get unprecedented values for their money.

Careful reading of the advertisements in the newspapers today will convince you that real bargains are being offered and that you can not afford to stay away from Kingston's busy shopping district Wednesday. You will be the loser if you fail to read a single one of the advertisements in today's paper. You will find bargains of all kinds, inducements galore, money saving opportunities innumerable—high class, seasonable goods at reduced prices in scores of Kingston stores, from one end of the city to the other. It will pay you to travel miles to this extraordinary merchandise event.

A dollar Wednesday will have the strength of two and more. In some stores men's and women's shoes can be had for a dollar. Men's hats are going for a dollar. Hardware, dry goods, groceries, meats, clothing, shoes, cigars, shirts, drugs, jewelry, furniture, eyeglasses, butter and eggs, bargains in almost anything for the simple sum—$1.

Store managers have made extraordinary preparations for accommodating the throngs of buyers. Follow the trail of the Dollar Day signs on the windows of those who are making special offers, but the best shopping guide will be to sit down tonight and read every advertisement carefully and make arrangements to take a day off Wednesday and make of it a shopping holiday.

MIDNIGHT FIRE AT BINNEWATER

Hoffman's Store and Meat Market and Two Houses Destroyed Saturday Night—Loss $10,000 and Very Little Insurance.

Former Sheriff Henry J. Hoffman's general store and meat market and two nearby houses at Binnewater were totally destroyed by fire shortly after 12 o'clock Saturday night. The store was located near the railroad crossing and was a two story frame building. George Castor occupied the rooms above the store. The fire is thought to have been caused by sparks from the engine of a passing freight train falling on the roof of the building, which stood near the tracks. Owing to the fact that there was no water facilities for fighting the fire the building was doomed. Back of the store runs a small brook and on the other side of the stream stood a house owned by Luther Keator and occupied by a widow named Sickles. This was also burned. Sparks carried by the wind also leaped across the road a distance of about twenty feet to the former residence of Luther Hoffman, now unoccupied, opposite the store, owned by Mr. Hoffman, and soon that was in flames. All three buildings were a total wreck. The fire was at the scene of the terrible accident to the straw load on Lincoln's birthday evening when the wagon containing a party of young people were struck by a freight train. There was a small insurance on the store and stock. The total loss will exceed $10,000.

All three buildings were a total wreck. The fire was at the scene of the terrible accident to the straw load on Lincoln's birthday evening when the wagon containing a party of young people were struck by a freight train. There was a small insurance on the store and stock. The total loss will exceed $10,000.

A band of gypsies passed through this place on Wednesday.
Mae Barnum and sister, Mrs. Emma Dutcher, of Oliveira were callers in this place Wednesday.
Edwin Chase and Jerome Aley of Oliveira were callers in this place Wednesday.

James Donihue and son, Daniel, enjoyed a ride in this place on Friday.
T. J. Bryant and son, Thomas, made a trip to Kingston on Thursday.

Helplessness.

The greatest moment in our career is when we awaken to the shining truth that our life, to make or mar, is wholly in our hands; that neither dark destiny nor grim fate nor the stars nor the decrees of the gods nor the machinations of men or devils can cheat us of that greatness of soul and serenity of mind which are the crown of real success.

The most terrible note in the despair of the despairing is the sound of helplessness. To feel that the universe is a huge machine to grind us at last to dust, that the odds of existence are against us and that we are borne down by the tramp of irresistible forces—this is the salt taste of failure.

But when a man has discovered that he himself is master and that no outside force can touch his inner triumph that discovery is as of a new world, the America of spirit, the opening vista of limitless opportunity.—Dr. Frank Crane in Woman's World.

To Each Age Its Problems.

It is not enough that we leave our institutions as our fathers shaped them. They knew little or nothing of the conditions which we face. Sufficient unto the age is the work thereof. It is not the right of any generation to project its will into the future, but it is the duty of each generation to adjust its institutions to meet its own needs.

Men need not wait until death to realize many of their ideals. They can have things here on earth which their fathers associated with the millennium. They need no longer overwork nor go cold and hungry nor suffer from pestilence or even famine. Machinery has provided the possibilities of a new life. When all of these possibilities are realized—when no one is overworked, cold or hungry, when all are leading joyous, purposeful lives—adjustment will be complete—wellfare will be universal.—From "Social Sanity," by Scott Nearing.

The Girl and the Artist.

A young woman sat for a crayon portrait and was not entirely pleased with the result.

"It looks like me, of course," she said reluctantly to the artist, "and yet I think there are some things about it that ought to be changed." She suggested that the eyes should have more of an upward look, that the bracelet should be a little more prominent on her left arm and that her gown be arranged more artistically on the side.

"That would require a great deal of retouching," said the artist, "and I should have to charge you at least $15 additional."

"Oh, dear!" she exclaimed, somewhat peevish. "I shall have to give it up. Father wouldn't stand my 'retouching' him to that extent."—Lippincott's.

MAYOR MITCHEL VISITS ASHOKAN

Inspecting the Big Reservoir and Taking Lessons in Pistol Practice While the Guest of Chief Engineer Smith.

Mayor John Purroy Mitchel of New York city is making an official inspection of the Ashokan reservoir, and is putting in some of the time between inspection trips in pistol practice.

The mayor's pistol practice is being done under the tutelage of Major Merritt Smith, department engineer in charge of the southern aqueduct department, who is a former United States army officer, and after very brief practice the mayor became extremely proficient in the use of a gun.

Mayor Mitchel, accompanied by Major Smith and Police Commissioner Arthur Woods, arrived at Ashokan shortly before seven o'clock Saturday night, and while in that region they are the guests of Chief Engineer J. Waldo Smith, who has had a home there since the commencement of the Ashokan work.

The mayor's party came by automobile, and dined with Chief Engineer Smith Saturday night. During the evening the mayor and Chief Engineer Smith talked over the southern trip which Mayor Mitchel took last fall and on which he was joined by Mr. Smith.

On Sunday morning Mayor Mitchel and the members of his party started by automobile for a trip around the reservoir. Near Boiceville, on the last leg of the trip, their automobile met with an accident and the members of the party alighted and walked around while the chauffeur made repairs.

Before the repairs were completed, the patrol wagon attached to the West Shokan precinct of the aqueduct police, arrived on the scene on its return to the barracks after having taken a detail of aqueduct patrolmen to Chief Engineer Smith's home, which has been guarded since Mayor Mitchel's arrival by a detail of ten members of the force under command of Sergeant Scanlon. The party returned to Chief Engineer Smith's home in the patrol wagon, which was in charge of Patrolman Exlinger, Mayor Mitchel sitting with the driver.

This morning Mayor Mitchel and Major Merritt Smith spent some time at pistol practice near Chief Engineer Smith's home. The mayor has carried a gun at different times, and was armed at the time the attempt was made on his life as he was leaving the city hall, New York city, last Friday afternoon. He has had no opportunity for practice recently, however, but rapidly recalled his former instructions, and under the direction of Major Smith he made a good practice, and at the end of an hour was shooting with regularity that was entirely satisfactory to him and his tutor.

After his experience in being shot at on Friday, Mayor Mitchel is endeavoring to get the feel of the .38 Smith & Wesson revolver. He is not a stranger to the Ashokan region, having frequently visited there during the course of the construction work during part of which time he was president of the New York Board of Aldermen.

Corporation Counsel Frank L. Polk, who received the bullet intended for Mayor Mitchel, is still in the hospital to which he was removed after the shooting. His condition Sunday was much improved, and the pain from the operation necessary to remove the bullet from his cheek has subsided. He sat up part of the day and received several callers. His callers included Dudley Field Malone, collector of the Port of New York; President George McAneny of the Board of Aldermen; Assistant Corporation Counsel James O'Neill of Brooklyn; Hamilton Fish and George H. Bell.

Mayor Mitchel, who has been greatly concerned over Mr. Polk's condition, telephoned to the hospital from Ashokan and was much relieved to learn of his progress. Mrs. Polk spent the day with her husband. Within a few days it is expected Mr. Polk will be able to leave the hospital and go to his home, and later he and Mrs. Polk will leave New York for several weeks in order that Mr. Polk may recuperate.

Michael P. Mahoney, the assailant of Mayor Mitchel, is in the Tombs, and spent Sunday mostly alone. He did not attend the chapel service provided for prisoners, but exercised in the corridor with the other prisoners during the periods when the prisoners are allowed to take exercise there.

Mayor Mitchel may return to New York tonight, but it is probable he will remain at Ashokan over night and return to New York tomorrow.

Millbrook Game Was Cancelled.

The Kingston Academy baseball nine did not travel to Millbrook as they had expected on Saturday. Manager Jones of the K. A. team received word from the Millbrook team that a snow storm had put their diamond in bad shape and a game would be impossible. The K. A. athletic management seem to be having unusual hard luck in carrying out their schedule during the past few years. Out of town teams seem to have no compunction about canceling their engagements, thus entirely disarranging the schedule. K. A. has already had two games of the three they have been scheduled to play canceled and have had no chance to wipe out the defeat inflicted by Newburgh.

Running Water.

Have you ever noticed, when the water has almost all run out of the bathtub, how the light particles on the surface seem then to race out much faster than the water? As a matter of fact, they are traveling faster than most of the water, but no faster than that on the surface.

The reason is not far to seek. Running water, even in a river, goes at different rates, but fastest on the top surface right in the middle of the stream. Friction with the sides and bottom makes the water there go more slowly. So the light particles on top of the water in the bathtub, along with the surface water, rush ahead at a good rate.

This particular peculiarity in rivers is utilized by boatmen when they have to go up a swift stream; they always paddle up near the bank. And at curves, as the water swings outward, they take the inside bank, for there the water is almost still. On the other hand, in coming down the very center of the stream is chosen.—St. Louis Republic.

Washington Official Life.

Dinners and social functions are conspicuous features of Washington life. The new senator or congressman always feels that he must keep up the pace, but his older colleagues do not hesitate to send in their regrets now and then. One senator whose young daughters make severe demands upon him as an escort to official functions, said:

"I have cut out all dinners and functions except those I feel under obligations to attend in my official capacity."

"I have done this for two reasons: First, because I have no time to attend them. I have too much to do. Second, Mr. Spofford, so long librarian of congress, once told me that most public men and army and navy officers who died in Washington 'dug their graves with their own teeth'—a saying which I have taken to heart."—National Magazine.

SCENE OF ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF NEW YORK'S MAYOR AND PRINCIPALS IN THE SENSATIONAL SHOOTING.

Below is shown a part of the great throng that crowded in front of New York city hall after Mayor Mitchel was shot. In the upper left hand corner Frank Polk is shown as he appeared at the scene, had just stepped into an automobile. In the upper right hand corner, Rose is shown in being attended by a surgeon. Mayor Mitchel is shown in the center and his would be assassin is shown in the lower right hand corner. Rose expresses regret that he had failed to wear his glasses, the lack of which spoiled his aim, he said.

"I have cut out all dinners and functions except those I feel under obligations to attend in my official capacity."

"I have done this for two reasons: First, because I have no time to attend them. I have too much to do. Second, Mr. Spofford, so long librarian of congress, once told me that most public men and army and navy officers who died in Washington 'dug their graves with their own teeth'—a saying which I have taken to heart."—National Magazine.

SCENE OF ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF NEW YORK'S MAYOR AND PRINCIPALS IN THE SENSATIONAL SHOOTING.

FOLLETTE HAS UNTIL TUESDAY

The application of District Attorney Cunningham to cancel the certificate granted to Henry A. Follette on the ground that his appeal to the appellate division had not been prosecuted by his counsel was argued before Judge Cochrane at Hudson on Saturday by District Attorney Cunningham for The People and by Frank W. Brooks for Follette.

At the close of the argument, Judge Cochrane decided that the brief on Follette's behalf must be filed on Tuesday or the certificate of reasonable doubt will be cancelled and set aside.

District Attorney Cunningham called attention to the numerous delays which had prevented him from bringing on the case for argument before the appellate division, and recited his numerous efforts to have the case on appeal prepared and served, and his later efforts to have the defendant's brief served on him so that the case could be argued at the May term of the appellate division.

The effect of cancelling and setting aside the certificate of reasonable doubt would be to cancel Follette's bail, and have him begin the serving of his sentence in Dannemora prison.

On Cleanup Day!

"Swat the fly!" will of course continue to be in order, but the cleanup idea is more of a beginning at the beginning in that the removal of filth and rubbish where flies breed and feed will reduce the number to be swatted, besides improving the appearance and sanitary conditions of any community.

Clever Elephant.
"Elephants are clever animals," said a trainer, "and I once had one that could read. He was a quarrelsome beast, and one day he got into a scrape with the Bengal tiger, and before we could get them separated he had his trunk badly damaged. After the scrimmage was over the elephant broke loose and started down the street fast. 'He's going wild!' somebody shouted. 'Don't you believe it,' says I. Now, where do you suppose that elephant went to?"
"Went to the surgeon's, I suppose. Can't you get up a better yarn?"
"No, he didn't go to the surgeon's. He went straight to a little shop where a sign read, 'Trunks repaired while you wait.' Of course he had made a mistake. But what do you expect of a poor dumb brute?"—London Globe.

Tale of Two Dogs.
Sir John Sebright, a prominent society man of the early nineteenth century, owned a remarkable dog. In "Coke of Norfolk" Mrs. A. M. W. Stirling relates that "Sir John Sebright often brought a favorite dog to Holkham, who was remarkably clever at learning tricks. Lord Erskine also possessed a dog which he declared the cleverer of the two. A wager was laid as to which animal in the course of a twelvemonth could be taught the most extraordinary trick. The trial took place at Holkham at the end of a year. Erskine's dog cleverly took a roast oyster out of the fire without injuring himself, but Sir John's dog actually carried a glass of wine without spilling a drop to any gentleman in the room pointed out to him."

FEDS SUE HAMILTON FOR $25,000

Earl Hamilton, the famous young twirler of the St. Louis Browns, who jumped to the Chicago Federal League team, and then, deciding that the Browns were at least better than the Federals, jumped right back to organized ball. The feds are now planning to sue the young star for $25,000, alleging breach of contract.

Strike at New Lighthouse.

A number of workmen employed by a sub-contractor on the new lighthouse at the north dyke struck on Saturday and returned to Albany where they have other employment. The engineer was discharged because of some words he had with the boss as to the limitations of his duties and the rest of the gang quit in sympathy with him. The work on the lighthouse will not be interrupted to any extent by the trouble.

MILK TEETH

The temporary or deciduous teeth of the child are more important than the parent usually appreciates.

There are ten of these Milk Teeth in each jaw—six fronts and four backs. At first these Milk Teeth have long roots that set firmly in the alveolar processes of the jaws. These roots are absorbed at certain ages in the child's growth and the permanent teeth are erupted, or cut, to take their place.

If all this process is gone through properly, there is no suffering from toothache or sore mouth—and the child will have a beautiful set of permanent teeth.

Through sympathy for neglected mouths of children, we have decided to treat all "Milk Teeth" at exactly half price. We want to come in contact with these children and explain to them the importance of the tooth brush and the care of the mouth and teeth.

Open evenings to 9. Sundays 9 to 1.

Y. M. C. A. BOYS WILL GO TO PANAMA

Lafayette Moore and Reginald Case
Chosen to Represent Kingston Y.
M. C. A. on a Five Weeks' Trip
Next Summer.

The "Senate," the debate club of the Y. M. C. A. boys' department, have chosen two high school boys, Lafayette Moore of Ulster Academy and Reginald Case of Kingston Academy, as delegates from this city to Panama, with the Panama Canal Club. The Panama Canal Club is composed of boy delegates from nearly all the important Y. M. C. A.'s in this country.

The members of the club are going together to the Panama canal exhibition in San Francisco in July, 1915. It will probably be the largest and most important exposition ever undertaken by Y. M. C. A. boys, as it is expected that fully five hundred boys will take this wonderful vacation trip. The party will meet in New York city and proceed by boat through the Panama canal and up the coast of Mexico and California to San Francisco. This army of enthusiastic boys from all over the United States will spend a week at the exposition and will return east by special train, via the Grand Canyon.

A most remarkable thing about the Panama Canal Club expedition to which the local delegates have just been elected, is that every boy is going to earn his own expenses. The local delegates, Lafayette Moore and Reginald Case, have started to earn their expenses by getting subscriptions for two well known publications Woman's Home Companion and The American Magazine, through the Cromwell Publishing Company of New York city.

M. D. Crakel of Cleveland, dean of the Boys' Work Secretaries, will be the leader of the party. His assistants, who form the executive committee in charge of the party, are Ivan P. Flood, Boys' Work Secretary, Newark, N. J.; J. A. Van Dine, secretary-treasurer, International Boys' Work Secretaries, Detroit, Mich.; Harry N. Clarke, formerly state religious work secretary for associations in Ohio; C. B. Kern, Boys' Work Secretary, Dayton, Ohio; Dr. Clark H. Hagenback, physician-director, Y. M. C. A. of Cleveland, Ohio, and F. M. Gammons, secretary of the Panama Canal Club, New York city. E. M. Robison, a prominent Y. M. C. A. official of the International Y. M. C. A. committee, New York city, will accompany the party as an executive member of the executive committee. In addition an adult leader will be in charge of each group of ten boys.

Epidemic of Minstrels.

The Y. M. C. A. fellows had the first attack quite a bit ago. The Young Men's Athletic Club of St. John's Church caught the germ soon after and have been developing as fine a case of minstrelsy as one could wish for. Being the first minstrel entertainment of the spring season, the boys will present an entirely new and fresh lot of fun both as to sketches and songs. In addition there will be complications in this particular case of minstrelsy in the form of a little play by a well known and popular writer. The young men are being coached by T. R. Richards, therefore the public knows what to expect in the way of an evening of "minstrelsy as is minstrelsy." They will give two performances at St. John's parish house, one on Friday of this week, the second on Saturday, each at a half past eight o'clock in the evening. Tickets may now be secured from any of the young men of St. John's Athletic Club. There will be rehearsals on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week, the one on Thursday night being the dress rehearsal.

New York, April 20.—Uneasiness arising from the Mexican situation and the possibility of war with Mexico gave the market a weak tone at the opening today and sharp declines resulted from moderate selling. There was practically no demand but at the end of the first half hour the pressure lessened and some stocks rallied and made partial recoveries. The opening declines included the following: Amalgamated Copper,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; United States Steel Common,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; Northern Pacific,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; Southern Pacific,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; Anaconda Copper,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; Mexican Petroleum,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; Lehigh Valley,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; American Can,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; Reading,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; Missouri Pacific,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; New York, New Haven and Hartford,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; Erie,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; General Motors,  $\frac{1}{4}$ ; and Canadian Pacific,  $\frac{1}{4}$ . Amalgamated Copper soon regained most of its initial declines while New Haven not only recovered but scored a slight gain. Reading, Southern Pacific and Steel acted in a similar manner. There was a hesitant tone in Missouri Pacific over the meeting to day relative to the refinancing of this line. The curb was quiet. Americans in London were heavy and Canadian Pacific the market was flabby. 2:30 p. m.—Nearly all stocks were lower in the last hour. Steel, after selling around 58, went to 57  $\frac{1}{4}$ . Mexican Petroleum sold at 62 for the loss of  $\frac{1}{4}$  from the opening. The tone was heavy.

The market closed dull. Government bonds unchanged; other bonds steady.

Woman's World

Roumanian Avatrice Who Seeks American Trophies.

MISS HELENE CARAGIANI. From the beautiful and romantic land of Carmen Sylva comes Miss Helene Caragiani, a daring woman aviator, who hopes she will return home to win many trophies away from the American aviators, with whom she wishes to compete.

Miss Caragiani brings her own aeroplane with her and spends all her spare time in practice. She believes that women make quite as skillful and daring aviators as men. She herself has made many notable ascensions abroad.

Speaking of the possibilities of crossing the Atlantic ocean in an airship, Miss Caragiani said:

"If men wait much longer some woman will take the trip before them." Miss Caragiani makes no secret of the fact that she would like to be the woman to do so.

Suspender Gowns.

Suspenders of various sorts are in fashion. There are many skirts this spring with suspenders to wear with separate blouses. Some of them are made of the wonderful new plaid taffetas. Sometimes the suspenders are wide and worn quite at the edge of the shoulders, and sometimes they are narrow. Sometimes they are fastened to an odd little waistcoat belt—a belt like the lower part of a waistcoat, including sometimes two diminutive pockets well toward the front.

The plaid taffetas are expensive, and although it does not take much to make a skirt with suspenders, still the required amount of taffeta would cost $11 or $12—the silk is about $3 a yard in a width of which almost four yards are needed. But there are cheaper plaid silks than taffeta that can be substituted for it. These suspender skirts in silk of plain color will also be seen. They are very useful, for they can be worn in warm weather with thin blouses and without coats, at the same time giving their wearers a feeling of being completely dressed.

Curtaining Casement Windows.

The picturesque casement window requires a simple treatment. Each window is done separately, with sheer, although not necessarily, expensive material.

The curtains should be shirred to a rod—that is, set inside of the frame if the window swings out and on the sash if the window swings in. If there is a group of windows a valance across the top, with draperies on the outside edge, is often the only curtaining.

Shades are not generally used, but if they must be added they should be hung inside and when not performing their mission of giving privacy arranged so they may be rolled up out of sight.

Bindings Seams.

The raw edges of seams should be either bound with this silk seam binding or carefully pinked on the edges by snipping them in little V shaped pieces with the scissors. If working with material that frays easily, such as serge and some of the loosely woven silks and woolen materials, all seams should be oversewn or "whipped" on the edge. The armholes of an unlined blouse should be bound and those of a lined bodice whipped.

Homemade Window Pole.

Take an old broom handle. Paint it to harmonize with your room and insert at one end a screw hook. Screw into the upper sash of each window in the room a ring screw for the hook on the pole and your window pole is ready for immediate use.

This will save you from having to run about the house looking for a window pole or climbing on chairs to reach the sashes every time you wish to raise or lower a window.

Use For Empty Cans.

Tin cans in which one has bought meat or fruit make fine roofing for sheds or henhouses. When empty cut or melt off the bottoms and hammer them out flat. Then nail them on to the framework just as you would shingles or slates. Tar the whole inside and out, and you will have a water tight and practically everlasting roof.

Aunt Agatha's Diplomacy

Proved Wanting When an Emergency Arose

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"My dear Agatha," said James Hemmaway, as he sat down in one of his sister's green brocade chairs and placed his hat on the polished mahogany table, "I haven't come to stay; I merely ran down to Glenwood to ask your advice and co-operation."

"I suppose it's Dorothy," said Miss Hemmaway, settling her fat form fussily in an easy chair.

"It's Dorothy again," admitted Hemmaway, with a troubled frown. "You know, Agatha, that my girl is a bit independent—like yourself," he smiled ruefully, "and that is why our wills so often clash. Now it is a matter of marriage."

"Marriage!" shrieked Agatha. "Don't tell me that child has eloped with somebody!"

"No; whatever put that notion into your head?" demanded Hemmaway impatiently. "She has been engaged to Dick Forester for three months. You knew that?"

Agatha nodded. "She wasn't happy a bit about it, either," she said seriously. "Agatha, you knew Dick and Dorothy were fond of each other," protested upside down. "What have you decided to do, James?"

"I have decided to let you take Dorothy in hand and try to cure her of her infatuation for young Woodruff."

"What shall I say to her?"

Mr. Hemmaway arose and picked up his hat and gloves.

"I am leaving that to you, Agatha. You know that you have always been considered the most diplomatic member of our family; you have smoothed out many perplexities for the rest of us, and now I am asking you to cure my motherless girl of her infatuation for this penniless adventurer, for I believe he is no more than that, although I must confess that the rascal has rather a winning way with him."

"I will do the best I can for you, James," agreed Agatha as they parted an hour later.

So Agatha sat down and telephoned to Dorothy and invited her to come down and spend a week at Glenwood.

Dorothy arrived in the morning and, beyond a sweet seriousness that only added to her charm in the eyes of her relative, she appeared to be just the same lovely girl as ever.

While Miss Hemmaway and Dorothy were having their tea in the side porch that May evening Aunt Agatha was trying to win Dorothy's confidence by skillful questioning. At last the whole story of Dorothy's love affairs was out, and somehow, watching the love light in the girl's soft eyes and perhaps remembering an unfinished love affair of her own far away youth, Aunt Agatha had not the heart to admonish the girl.

While they sat there, there came a sound through the quiet village street. It was the sound of an approaching motorcar driven at high speed.

Miss Agatha stood up and looked anxiously across the old fashioned garden surrounded by its moss grown and picturesque old picket fence.

She rushed to the steps just as a small gray motorcar whizzed around the dreaded corner of the road beyond her garden and crashed through the ancient picket fence and came to a standstill in the middle of her bed of sweet lavender.

"Oh-h-h!" shrieked Miss Agatha as she waddled down the garden path.

"Is he hurt? Is he killed?" panted Dorothy as she flew past her aunt.

"Don't you see, Aunt Agatha, there's a man in the machine?"

"He's out of it by this time—and spoiling my lavender bed," shrieked Agatha as she came upon the scene.

"He is quite unconscious, Aunt Agatha," said Dorothy, with tears streaming down her cheeks. She was kneeling beside a lean, brown young man who was lying with his face in the young lavender plants. "I am afraid he is dead."

"Nonsense," quaked Aunt Agatha. "I'm surprised at you, Dorothy, growing hysterical over such a matter! Calm yourself at once. Go into the house and send Sarah out here. Ah, here come some of the neighbors! Go at once and telephone for Dr. Gray."

In half an hour the crowd had dispersed and the injured motorist was reclining between the lavender scented sheets of the bed in Miss Agatha's best room.

Dr. Gray had reported that the young man was suffering from shock and numerous bruises and would be as well as ever in a day or so.

It was the evening of the second day after the accident.

Miss Agatha and Dorothy were having tea in the side porch. There were frosted cake and damson jam, cottage cheese and a delicious salad. Upstairs in the spare bedroom Mr. Kirk was sitting up in bed enjoying the same delicacies from a tray brought by the interested Sarah.

Miss Hemmaway was talking about their unexpected guest.

"I like Mr. Kirk so much, Dorothy, dear," said Agatha as she helped herself to some jam; "he is such a clean cut, manly chap, and there's a sort of set look about his mouth that betrays strong determination—if he set his heart on anything he would surely gain it."

"You think so, Auntie?" asked Dorothy demurely.

"Yes, my dear! Do you know he told me that his father is the president of the G. W. P. railroad—and that his father made a wager with him that he couldn't earn his living for one year—and he says he did it, too! He didn't say how he did it, but he won the wager and now he has invested the money in a business and he says he's made another wager with the old man—that's what he called him, and it slipped my tongue"—apologized Aunt Agatha in a shocked tone—"dear me, what was I saying?"

"You were saying he had another wager with his father," prompted Dorothy in a still, small voice.

"Oh, yes, he has declared he will make a fortune that will equal his father's in ten years; he really has grit and determination."

"Yes, indeed," agreed Dorothy.

"He is very handsome, don't you think so?" ventured Aunt Agatha craftily.

"Quite," said Dorothy indifferently. "I shall be sorry to have him go, won't you, my dear?" she pursued.

"Yes," said Dorothy. "You have been very kind to him, Auntie."

"Dorothy, I've lost my heart to him," confessed Aunt Agatha. "If your chauffeur had been like Mr. Kirk I could not have blamed you one bit!"

"Really, Aunt Agatha?"

"My dear!" cried Aunt Agatha, wiping her tears away. "Now, I do want you to be happy, and at the same time I want to do my duty by your father. I wish I knew what to do!"

"Don't you really know what to do, Aunt Agatha?" asked Dorothy in amazement.

"Why, father has always quoted you as being the most practical and most diplomatic woman of his acquaintance!"

"Oh, oh!" gasped Agatha, feeling that her well ordered world was turning ed Hemmaway, growing rather red about the ears.

"In a brotherly and sisterly sort of way, or with the affection of cousins," argued Agatha firmly. "I will say that Dorothy tried to obey you that time, James, although any one could see that the child was unhappy about it. Now, tell me, what is the present trouble?"

"Dorothy has broken her engagement to Dick—and she has fallen in love with my chauffeur."

"With your chauffeur?" cried Agatha in a horrified

Y. M. C. A. BOYS WILL GO TO PANAMA

Lafayette Moore and Reginald Case
Chosen to Represent Kingston Y.
M. C. A. on a Five Weeks' Trip
Next Summer.

The "Senate," the debate club of the Y. M. C. A. boys' department, have chosen two high school boys, Lafayette Moore of Ulster Academy and Reginald Case of Kingston Academy, as delegates from this city to Panama, with the Panama Canal Club. The Panama Canal Club is composed of boy delegates from nearly all the important Y. M. C. A.'s in this country.

The members of the club are going together to the Panama canal exhibition in San Francisco in July, 1915. It will probably be the largest and most important exposition ever undertaken by Y. M. C. A. boys, as it is expected that fully five hundred boys will take this wonderful vacation trip. The party will meet in New York city and proceed by boat through the Panama canal and up the coast of Mexico and California to San Francisco. This army of enthusiastic boys from all over the United States will spend a week at the exposition and will return early by special train, via the Grand Canyon.

A most remarkable thing about the Panama Canal Club expedition to which the local delegates have just been elected, is that every boy is going to earn his own expenses. The local delegates, Lafayette Moore and Reginald Case, have started to earn their expenses by getting subscriptions for two well known publications, Woman's Home Companion and The American Magazine, through the Cromwell Publishing Company of New York city.

M. D. Craker of Cleveland, dean of the Boys' Work Secretaries, will be the leader of the party. His assistants, who form the executive committee in charge of the party, are Ivan P. Flood, Boys' Work Secretary, Newark, N. J.; J. A. Van Dyke, secretary-treasurer, International Boys' Work Secretaries, Detroit, Mich.; Harry N. Clarke, formerly state religious work secretary for associations in Ohio; C. B. Kern, Boys' Work Secretary, Dayton, Ohio; Dr. Clark H. Hagenbuck, physician director, Y. M. C. A. at Cleveland, Ohio, and F. M. Gammons, secretary Panama Canal Club, New York city. E. M. Robinson, a prominent Y. M. C. A. official of the International Y. M. C. A. committee, New York city, will accompany the party as ex-officio member of the executive committee. In addition an adult leader will be in charge of each group of ten boys.

Epidemic of Minstrels.

The Y. M. C. A. fellows had the first attack quite a bit ago. The Young Men's Athletic Club of St. John's Church caught the germ soon after and have been developing as fine a case of minstrelsy as one could wish for. Being the first season, the boys will present an entirely new and fresh lot of fun both as to sketches and songs. In addition there will be complications in this particular case of minstrelsy in the form of a little play by a well known and popular writer. The young men are being coached by T. R. Richards, therefore the public knows what to expect in the way of an evening of "minstrelsy as is minstrelsy." They will give two performances at St. John's parish house, one on Friday of this week, the second on Saturday, each to begin at eight o'clock in the evening. Tickets may now be secured from any of the young men of St. John's Athletic Club. There will be rehearsals on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week, the one on Thursday night being the dress rehearsal.

Woman's World

Roumanian Aviator Who Seeks American Trophies.

From the beautiful and romantic land of Carmen Sylva comes Miss Helene Caragiani, a daring woman aviator, who hopes she will return home to win many trophies away from the American aviators, with whom she wishes to compete.

Miss Caragiani brings her own aeroplane with her and spends all her spare time in practice. She believes that women make quite as skillful and daring aviators as men. She herself has made many notable ascensions abroad.

Speaking of the possibilities of crossing the Atlantic ocean in an airship, Miss Caragiani said:

"If men wait much longer some woman will take the trip before them."

Miss Caragiani makes no secret of the fact that she would like to be the woman to do so.

Suspender Gowns.
Suspenders of various sorts are in fashion. There are many skirts this spring with suspenders to wear with separate blouses. Some of them are made of the wonderful new plaid taffetas. Sometimes the suspenders are wide and worn quite at the edge of the shoulders, and sometimes they are narrow. Sometimes they are fastened to an old little waistcoat belt—a belt like the lower part of a waistcoat, including sometimes two diminutive pockets well toward the front.

The plaid taffetas are expensive, and although it does not take much to make a skirt with suspenders, still the required amount of taffeta would cost $11 or $12—the silk is about $3 a yard in a width of which almost four yards are needed. But there are cheaper plaid silks than taffetas that can be substituted for it. These suspender skirts in silk of plain color will also be seen. They are very useful, for they can be worn in warm weather with thin blouses and without coats, at the same time giving their wearers a feeling of being completely dressed.

Curtaining Casement Windows.
The picturesque casement window requires a simple treatment. Each window is done separately, with sheer, although not necessarily, expensive material.

The curtains should be shirred to a rod—that is, set inside of the frame if the window swings out and on the sash if the window swings in. If there is a group of windows a valance across the top, with draperies on the outside edge, is often the only curtaining.

Shades are not generally used, but if they must be added they should be hung inside and when not performing their mission of giving privacy arranged so they may be rolled up out of sight.

Binding Seams.
The raw edges of seams should be either bound with this silk seam binding or carefully pinked on the edges by snipping them in little V shaped pieces with the scissors. If working with material that frays easily, such as serge and some of the loosely woven silks and woolen materials, all seams should be oversewn or "whipped" on the edge. The armholes of an unlined blouse should be bound and those of a lined bodice whipped.

Homemade Window Pole.
Take an old broom handle. Paint it to harmonize with your room and insert at one end a screw hook. Screw into the upper sash of each window in the room a ring screw for the hook on the pole and your window pole is ready for immediate use.

This will save you from having to run about the house looking for a window pole or climbing on chairs to reach the sashes every time you wish to raise or lower a window.

Use For Empty Cans.
Tin cans in which one has bought meat or fruit make fine roofing for sheds or henhouses. When empty cut or melt off the bottoms and hammer them out flat. Then nail them on to the framework just as you would shingles or slates. Tar the whole inside and out, and you will have a water tight and practically everlasting roof.

Aunt Agatha's Diplomacy

Proved Wanting When an Emergency Arose

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"My dear Agatha," said James Hemmingsway, as he sat down in one of his sister's green brocade chairs and placed his hat on the polished mahogany table, "I haven't come to stay; I merely ran down to Glenwood to ask your advice and co-operation."

"I suppose it's Dorothy," said Miss Hemmingsway, settling her fat form fustily in an easy chair.

"It's Dorothy again," admitted Hemmingsway, with a troubled frown. "You know, Agatha, that my girl is a bit independent—like yourself," he smiled ruefully, "and that is why our wills so often clash. Now it is a matter of marriage."

"Marriage!" shrieked Agatha. "Don't tell me that child has eloped with somebody!"

"No; whatever put that notion into your head?" demanded Hemmingsway impatiently. "She has been engaged to Dick Forester for three months. You knew that?"

Agatha nodded. "She wasn't happy a bit about it, either," she said seriously.

"Agatha, you knew Dick and Dorothy were fond of each other," protested

AT LAST THE STORY OF DOROTHY'S LOVE AFFAIR WAS OUT.

ed Hemmingsway, growing rather red about the ears.

"In a brotherly and sisterly sort of way, or with the affection of cousins," argued Agatha firmly. "I will say that Dorothy tried to obey you that time, James, although any one could see that the child was unhappy about it. Now, tell me, what is the present trouble?"

"Dorothy has broken her engagement to Dick—and she has fallen in love with my chauffeur."

"With your chauffeur?" cried Agatha in a horrified tone that gratified her brother's injured feelings. "Not that chattering Frenchman—Henri?"

"No—no—give my girl credit for some good taste," cried Hemmingsway impatiently. "Henri left six months ago and since then I've had a young chap from Colorado, Woodruff by name. He's the best chauffeur I ever had, knows a machine from A to Z. Quiet, dependable sort of fellow, and what goes Dorothy do but take a fancy to him and he to her—Agatha, he had the audacity to come to me yesterday morning and announce that he loved my daughter and asked permission to marry her!"

"James!" shrieked Agatha, trying to suppress a thrill of warmth at the recital of this romance in real life.

"Yes," said James grimly, "he had a splendid nerve. There was only one thing to do, and I did it!"

"What was that?"

"Fired him on the spot," snapped Hemmingsway, arising and pacing the floor nervously. "After he had gone—and, confound the puppy, he took his dismissal in a quiet sort of way; he was more self controlled than I—after he had gone, why, Dorothy came running down and I told her about it, expecting she would be highly indignant at his presumption in aspiring to her heart and hand."

"And what did she have to say?" asked Agatha eagerly.

"At first she cried because I had dismissed him; then she flared up and said she loved him and that she would never marry any one else, and right under my very nose she telephoned to Dick and broke off her engagement with him. It's a fearful mess," he groaned.

"Poor Dick," sighed Agatha. "I suppose he is broken hearted."

"Poor Dick doesn't seem to need your sympathies, Aggie! It appears that the engagement was something of a burden to him as well as to Dorothy. He had fallen in love with Cyrus Blank's pretty little girl and he is happy enough over the outcome. Seems he has offered to stand by Dorothy and her chauffeur, if necessary."

"Oh, oh!" gasped Agatha, feeling that her well ordered world was turning upside down. "What have you decided to do, James?"

"I have decided to let you take Dorothy in hand and try to cure her of her infatuation for young Woodruff."

"What shall I say to her?"

"Mr. Hemmingsway arose and picked up his hat and gloves."

"I am leaving that to you, Agatha. You know that you have always been considered the most diplomatic member of our family; you have smoothed out many perplexities for the rest of us, and now I am asking you to cure my motherless girl of her infatuation for this penniless adventurer, for I believe he is no more than that, although I must confess that the rascal has rather a winning way with him!"

"I will do the best I can for you, James," agreed Agatha as they parted an hour later.

So Agatha sat down and telephoned to Dorothy and invited her to come down and spend a week at Glenwood.

Dorothy arrived in the morning and, beyond a sweet seriousness that only added to her charm in the eyes of her relative, she appeared to be just the same lovely girl as ever.

While Miss Hemmingsway and Dorothy were having their tea in the side porch that May evening Aunt Agatha was trying to win Dorothy's confidence by skillful questioning. At last the whole story of Dorothy's love affairs was out, and somehow, watching the love light in the girl's soft eyes and perhaps remembering an unfinished love affair of her own far away youth, Aunt Agatha had not the heart to admonish the girl.

While they sat there, there came a sound through the quiet village street. It was the sound of an approaching motorcar driven at high speed.

Miss Agatha stood up and looked anxiously across the old fashioned garden surrounded by its moss grown and plecthres old picket fence.

She rushed to the steps just as a small gray motorcar whizzed around the dreaded corner of the road beyond her garden and crashed through the ancient picket fence and came to a standstill in the middle of her bed of sweet lavender.

"Oh-h-h!" shrieked Miss Agatha as she waddled down the garden path.

"Is he hurt? Is he killed?" panted Dorothy as she flew past her aunt.

"Don't you see, Aunt Agatha, there's a man in the machine!"

"He's out of it by this time—and spoiling my lavender bed," shrieked Agatha as she came upon the scene.

"He is quite unconscious, Aunt Agatha," said Dorothy, with tears streaming down her cheeks. She was kneeling beside a lean, brown young man who was lying with his face in the young lavender plants. "I am afraid he is dead."

"Nonsense," quaked Aunt Agatha. "I'm surprised at you, Dorothy, growing hysterical over such a matter! Calm yourself at once. Go into the house and send Sarah out here. Ah, here come some of the neighbors! Go at once and telephone for Dr. Gray."

In half an hour the crowd had dispersed and the injured motorist was reclining between the lavender scented sheets of the bed in Miss Agatha's best room.

Dr. Gray had reported that the young man was suffering from shock and numerous bruises and would be as well as ever in a day or so.

It was the evening of the second day after the accident.

Miss Agatha and Dorothy were having tea in the side porch. There were frosted cake and damson jam, cottage cheese and a delicious salad. Upstairs in the spare bedroom Mr. Kirk was sitting up in bed enjoying the same delicacies from a tray brought by the interested Sarah.

Miss Hemmingsway was talking about their unexpected guest.

"I like Mr. Kirk so much, Dorothy, dear," said Agatha as she helped her sister to some jam; "he is such a clean cut, manly chap, and there's a sort of set look about his mouth that betrays strong determination—if he sets his heart on anything he will surely gain it."

"You think so, Auntie?" asked Dorothy demurely.

"Yes, my dear! Do you know he told me that his father is the president of the G. W. P. railroad—and that his father made a wager with him that he couldn't earn his living for one year—and he says he did it, too! He didn't say how he did it, but he won the wager and now he has invested the money in a business and he says he's made another wager with the old man—that's what he called him, and it slipped my tongue!" apologized Aunt Agatha in a shocked tone—"dear me, what was I saying?"

"You were saying he had another wager with his father," prompted Dorothy in a still, small voice.

"Oh, yes, he has declared he will make a fortune that will equal his father's in ten years; he really has grit and determination."

"Yes, indeed," agreed Dorothy. "He is very handsome, don't you think so?" ventured Aunt Agatha craftily.

"Quite," said Dorothy indifferently. "I shall be sorry to have him go, won't you, my dear?" she pursued.

"Yes," said Dorothy. "You have been very kind to him, Auntie."

"Dorothy, I've lost my heart to him," confessed Aunt Agatha. "If your chauffeur had been like Mr. Kirk I could not have blamed you one bit!"

"Really, Aunt Agatha?"

"My dear!" cried Aunt Agatha, wiping her tears away. "Now, I do want you to be happy, and at the same time I wish to do my duty by your father. I want I know what to do!"

"Don't you really know what to do, Aunt Agatha?" asked Dorothy in amazement. "Why, father has always quoted you as being the most practical and most diplomatic woman of his acquaintance."

"My dear," said Aunt Agatha solemnly, "my diplomacy is a mere humbug—I haven't the diplomacy of a cat!"

"Oh, Auntie!" Dorothy hugged her in silence.

"If I had my way you wouldn't marry Dick Forester at all. You should have your chauffeur at once!"

"Auntie, dear, if Dick married me now he'd be lephoned to me that he and Cissy Blank had just been married and were going to break the news to her father."

"I am so glad, dear," sympathized Aunt Agatha, and then she added wistfully: "I don't suppose you could manage to fall in love with Mr. Kirk? It would be such a lovely arrangement all around. His father is very wealthy—that would please James—and then Mr. Kirk is such a fine character, and so very lovable!"

Dorothy's arms went around her aunt's neck.

ULSTER ACADEMY WON THE GAME

The Ulster Academy baseball team made Eastman's Business College bite the dust Saturday at Eastman Park. The score was 11 to 7. The local lads started scoring in the second inning and were never in danger of being beaten.

The team took along their batting eyes and used them at the right times—when there were men on the bases. Culloton slammed the ball over the fence with two men on the bases but was called out for failing to touch second and third bases. Terwilliger and Pehlman each swatted the ball for a two bagger.

It has been stated that Eastmans bit the dust. There was plenty of it in the air because of the seven bases stolen by the orange and black. "Bud" fanned 12 of those who faced him and was effective in the pinches.

In the fifth inning the Eastman nine was infected with spring fever and gave way to a whole new team. Two pitchers were tried and canned before an effective twirler was found. Carter was this man's name and he prevented Ulster from tallying a larger score. The score:

First Presbyterian Church.

On Sunday morning two new members were received into the First Presbyterian Church on profession of faith. With the thirteen new members taken in January, the twenty-one on April 5, we have a total of thirty-six this quarter.

There may be some who believe the church is not active today and that it is losing ground and also that church members are no interested in personal evangelism, but the above facts would prove the opposite. One man by his own personal effort has brought in fourteen new members.

The First Presbyterian Church has recently installed a new $5,000 organ and has secured the services of W. H. Rider, as second violin to assist Mr. and Mrs. Ford Hummel with the instrumental music. It has also organized a choir of eleven voices, and the musical program has been very much improved by these new acquisitions and bids fair to fill the seating capacity of the church.

Miss Lyne declares she is not afraid of the suit and that she is perfectly willing to tell all that occurred during her quarrel with Hammerstein in London. She says the worst name she called Hammerstein was "dead duck."

With the thirteen new members taken in in January, the twenty-one on April 5, we have a total of thirty-six this quarter. There may be some who believe the church is not active today and that it is losing ground and also that church members are no interested in personal evangelism, but the above facts would prove the opposite. One man by his own personal effort has brought in fourteen new members.

The First Presbyterian Church has recently installed a new $5,000 organ and has secured the services of W. H. Rider, as second violin to assist Mr. and Mrs. Ford Hummel with the instrumental music. It has also organized a choir of eleven voices, and the musical program has been very much improved by these new acquisitions and bids fair to fill the seating capacity of the church.

WILSON ENUMERATES INSULTS FROM HUERTA

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 20.—Congress convened at 3 o'clock this afternoon in joint session to receive a message from the president which was as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Congress:

"It is my duty to call your attention to a situation which has arisen in our dealings with General Victoriano Huerta at Mexico City which calls for action and to ask your advice and co-operation in acting upon it. On the ninth of April a paymaster of the United States steamship Delphin landed at Ixturbe bridge at Tampico with a wholeboat and a boat's crew to take off certain supplies needed by his ship and while engaged in loading the boat was arrested by an officer and squad of men of the army of General Huerta. Neither the paymaster nor any one of the boat's crew was armed. Two of the men were in the boat when the arrest took place and were obliged to leave it and submit to be taken into custody, notwithstanding the fact that the boat carried, both at her bow and at her stern the flag of the United States. The officer who made the arrest was proceeding up one of the streets of the town with his prisoners when met by an officer of higher authority who ordered him to return to the landing and await orders, and within an hour and a half from the time of the arrest, orders were received from the commander of the Huertista forces at Tampico for the release of the paymaster and his men. The release was followed by apologies from the commander and later by an expression of regret by General Huerta himself. General Huerta urged that martial law obtained at the time at Tampico; that orders had been issued that no one should be allowed to land at the Ixturbe bridge and that our sailors had no right to land there. Our naval commanders at the port had not been notified of any such prohibition, and even if they had been, the only justifiable course open to the local authorities would have been to request the paymaster and his crew to withdraw and to lodge a protest with the commanding officer of the fleet.

"Admiral Mayo regarded the arrest as so serious an affront that he was not satisfied with the apologies offered but demanded that the flag of the United States be saluted with special ceremony by the military commander of the port.

"The incident cannot be regarded as a trivial one, especially as two of the men arrested were taken from the boat itself—that is to say, from the territory of the United States; but had it stood itself it might have been attributed to the ignorance or arrogance of a single officer.

"Unfortunately, it was not an isolated case. A series of incidents have recently occurred which cannot but create the impression that the representatives of General Huerta were willing to go out of their way to show disregard for the dignity and rights of this government and felt perfectly safe in doing what they pleased, making free to show in many ways their irritation and contempt.

"A few days after the incident at Tampico, an orderly from the U. S. S. Minnesota was arrested at Vera Cruz while ashore in uniform to obtain the ship's mail and was for a time thrown into jail.

"An official dispatch from this government to its embassy at Mexico City was withheld by the authorities of the telegraphic service until peremptorily demanded by our charge d'affaires in person.

"So far as I can learn, such wrongs and annoyances have been suffered to occur only against representatives of the United States. I have heard of no complaints from other governments of similar treatment.

"Subsequent explanations and formal apologies did not and could not alter the popular impression, which it is possible, it had been the object of the Huertista authorities to create, that the government of the United States was being singled out and might be singled out with impunity, for slights and affronts in retaliation for its refusal to recognize the pretensions of General Huerta to be regarded as the constitutional provisional president of the Republic of Mexico.

"The manifest danger of such a situation was that such offenses might grow from bad to worse until something happened of so gross and intolerable a sort as to lead directly and inevitably to armed conflict. It was necessary that the apologies of General Huerta and his representatives should go much further, that they should be such as to attract the attention of the whole population to their significance and such as to impress upon General Huerta himself the necessity of seeing to it that no further occasion for explanation and professed regrets should arise.

"I, therefore, felt it my duty to sustain Admiral Mayo in the whole of his demand and to insist that the flag of the United States should be saluted in such a way as to indicate a new spirit and attitude on the part of the Huertistas.

"Such a salute General Huerta has refused and I have come to ask your approval and support in the course I now propose to pursue.

"This government, can I earnestly hope, in no circumstances be forced into war with the people of Mexico. Mexico is torn by civil strife. If we are to accept the texts of its own constitution, it has no government. General Huerta has set his power up in the city of Mexico, such as it is, without right and by methods for which there can be no justification. Only part of the country is under his control. If armed conflict should unhappily come a result of his attitude of personal resentment towards this government, we should be fighting only General Huerta and those who adhere to him and give him their support, and our object would be only to restore to the people of the distracted republic the opportunity to set up again their own laws and their own government.

"But I earnestly hope that war is not now in question. I believe that I speak for the American people when I say that we do not desire to control in any degree the affairs of our sister republic. Our feeling for the people of Mexico is one of deep and genuine friendship, and everything that we have so far done or refrained from doing has proceeded from our desire to help them, not to hinder or embarrass them. We would not wish even to exercise the good offices of friendship without their welcome and consent. The people of Mexico are entitled to settle their own domestic affairs in their own way, and we sincerely desire to respect their right. The present situation need have none of the grave implications of interference if we deal with it promptly, firmly and wisely.

"No doubt I could do what is necessary in the circumstances to enforce respect for our government without resource to the congress and yet not exceed my constitutional powers as president, but I do not wish to act on a matter possibly of so grave consequence except in close conference and co-operation with both the senate and house.

"I, therefore, come to ask your approval that I should use the armed forces of the United States in such ways and to such an extent as may be necessary to obtain from General Huerta and his adherents the fullest recognition of the rights and dignity of the United States even amidst the distressing conditions now unhappily obtaining in Mexico.

"There can, in what we do, be no thought of aggression or of selfish aggrandizement. We seek to maintain the dignity and authority of the United States only because we wish always to keep our great influence unimpaired for the uses of liberty, both in the United States and where ever else it may be employed for the benefit of mankind.

"At 3:30 o'clock the house foreign affairs committee met in special session to consider the following resolution:

"Resolved, by the senate and the house of representatives in congress assembled, that the president of the United States is justified in the employment of armed forces of the United States to enforce demands upon Victoriano Huerta for unequivocal amendments to the government of the United States for affronts and indignities committed against this government by General Huerta and his representatives."

It is expected that the resolution will be reported to the house today.

SOCIETY NOTES.

The wedding of Miss Jennie Reinhardt and William Trice will take place at St. Peter's Church on Wednesday afternoon, April 29, at 5 o'clock. The Rev. George H. Wermuth will officiate.

Miss Stella M. Reis, daughter of Michael A. Reis, and John A. Mulligan will be married at St. Peter's Church on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. George H. Wermuth.

Carro-Disch.

In the presence of a large number of friends gathered in St. Peter's Church to witness the ceremony, Miss Katherine Disch and James Carro were united in marriage at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, the Rev. George H. Wermuth being the officiating clergyman. The bride was attired in white crepe de chine with over lace and pearl trimmings and carried a bouquet of roses. She was attended by her niece, Miss Susan Schatzel, who wore white marquisette with over lace and carried a bouquet of white carnations. The best man was John F. Disch of Honesdale, Penn., a cousin of the bride. The wedding march was played by Prof. John Schwalbach, organist of St. Peter's Church. After the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Caroline Schatzel, No. 34 South Clinton avenue, at which only near relatives were in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Carro will reside at No. 94 Greenhill avenue. The groom is the well known barber on Railroad avenue.

Atharhacton Club.

The Atharhacton Club will hold its final meeting of the year, tomorrow, Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock at the home of Miss Dorothy Chipp on Fair street. All members are urged to be present as officers for the ensuing year will be elected and subjects for next year's papers chosen from the new program.

The Coerie.

Mrs. Patchen entertained The Coerie on Saturday, when a fine program was enjoyed. Miss Hale had the first paper for the afternoon, her subject being "Roman Triumphs." The paper was entirely historic in character but so well presented that it was of live interest as well as informing to all. Mrs. Flemming had the second paper covering two topics, first, "The Roman Forum," and second, "The Palaces of the Caesars." It was brought out, in connection with the description of the Forum that there were prescribed laws controlling the architecture of such forums in every Roman city. Furthermore laws directed the nearness of other buildings to the Forum. All of which knowledge had proven of inestimable value to those who had been engaged in the excavating of Roman cities. As for the "Palace of the Caesars," it was shown that with all the pomp and splendor of those days, any family in a cottage today has more of real comfort than was known to the Caesars. All were keenly interested in this paper. Subjects for next year's papers were chosen, the general subject being "The Slaves." The next meeting of the club will be at the home of Mrs. Brown.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES.

Tracy Dows of Rhinebeck has purchased for his personal use a Franklin runabout from Forsyth & Davis that is said to be the finest appearing car ever seen in Kingston.

Forsyth & Davis have sold a Studebaker four-cylinder touring car to Jacob H. Tremper, Jr.

O. M. Kennedy, proprietor of the Central Garage, has just sold and made delivery of a Reo touring car to S. Baker & Son, Rondout.

What promises to be the most practical efficiency test in the history of automobilism will occur on Friday morning, May 1, when every Franklin dealer in the country will disconnect the regular gasoline tank on his Six-Thirty Franklin, put on a one gallon can and under the supervision of automobile club officers and other impartial observers will go out and see how far he can go on a gallon of gasoline. There will be from 150 to 200 cars rolling up economy figures in all parts of the country at the same time under every kind of road and weather conditions. The routes selected will cover city pavements, rough country roads up and down grades. It will be straight driving throughout, a test of the actual efficiency of each car. This trial will show what the cars are actually doing and can do in their daily work. Every car will be a stock model, with the same equipment and alike in every detail. Forsyth & Davis will enter this test and expect to be well up toward the head of the list.

About a mile above the concrete bridge at Boiceville there is a piece of the worst road in the county and motorists will do well to avoid it.

At Trinity M. E. Church.

The Rev. C. C. Marshall, pastor of Trinity Church, at the Sunday morning service preached upon the "Resurrection Power of the Church." He spoke of the church in the different stages of its history referred to many of the great revivals and the work of Billy Sunday, the great future in store for it, the time of its greatest usefulness being dependent only upon the awakening of its present membership to the wonderful opportunities of this day and generation. His presentation of the subject was an inspiration to the individual and should be the forerunner of a greater and more widespread interest in the church and its work. At the evening service the pastor delivered the fifth sermon on the course on the essence of religion, his subject: "Was Christ Tempted as We Are." The vested choir furnished special music at both morning and evening services.

On Sunday evening next the sixth of the series of lectures on great lives and epochs by the pastor, the subject will be John Knox, the Reformer of Scotland. This lecture will be illustrated by the stereopticon.

Lecture Greatly Enjoyed.

The illustrated lecture on "Catholic Ireland" delivered in St. Mary's Church by the Rev. John J. Hickey on Sunday evening was well attended and gave great satisfaction. Harry Howard sang a solo and Miss Estella McNellis gave a piano selection that was greatly appreciated.

Captain Julius Hyde is confined to his home by an accident which nearly cost him an eye on Sunday morning. He was steering his tug, the Coe F. Young, when the wheel threw him violently against one of the windows of the pilot house and the broken glass cut his face severely, one laceration being dangerously near the eye. The tug brought him to his home here where he is receiving medical attendance.

Telephone Cable Torn Up.

The tug Marlborough ran aground at the Abbey dock on Saturday night and in the efforts to get her off the boat fouled the cable of the New York Telephone Company which runs across the creek to Port Ewen and furnishes service to that place and others down the river. Workmen were busy this morning laying a new cable.

DIED.

BISHOP.—In this city Sunday, April 19, 1914, Oscar Bishop, aged 52 years.

Funeral Wednesday at 2 p. m. from residence, 46 Boulevard. Interment in Wiltwyck cemetery. Relatives and friends invited.

Dazed the Crank.

David P. Barrows, while acting president of the University of California, one day received a queer visitor. Lean and terribly earnest, the man broke into Barrows' study.

"I am the prophet Micah," he announced, "and I have a need for your service. The world is soon to come to an end. Could you not spread the tidings through the university?"

Dr. Barrows shook his visitor by the hand, collected his thoughts and replied: "I believe that at no time was there such a crying need for prophets. But, unfortunately, prophesying is an art with which I am unfamiliar. I am not even in close sympathy with it and, as I am unable to comprehend what you have accomplished, I confess inability to participate as a prognosticator."

Whether it was the unexpected reply or the quick fire of so many words that dazed the visitor will never be known. Certain it is the man backed to the door and uttered the inadequate reply, "Yes."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Gentlemen of Leisure.

One of the upper ten thousand, once visiting America, accepted the hospitality of a gentleman in New York. When taking farewell of his host the latter asked him what he thought of the American people.

"Well," answered the nobleman, "I like them immensely, but I miss something."

"What is that?" asked the Yankee. "I miss the aristocracy," replied the Englishman.

"What are they?" naively asked his host.

"The aristocracy?" said the nobleman in a somewhat surprised tone of voice. "Why, they are people who do nothing, you know; whose fathers did nothing, you know; whose grandfathers did nothing, you know—in fact, the aristocracy!"

Here he was interrupted by the American, who chimed in with, "Oh, we've plenty of them over here, but we don't call them aristocracy—we call them tramps."—Exchange.

Washington's Only Joke.

The only admirable quality in which Washington was deficient was humor. One of the very few jests he ever made—perhaps the only one—has descended to posterity on the authority of his aid-de-camp, Colonel Humphreys.

General Washington rather prided himself on his riding, so the colonel one day when they were out hunting together dared him to follow over one particular hedge. The challenge was accepted, and Humphreys led the way. He took the leap boldly, but to his consternation found that he had mistaken the spot and was sunk up to his horse's girth in a quagmire. The general either knew the ground better or had suspected something, for, following at an easy pace, he reined up at the hedge and, looking over at his engulfed aid, exclaimed, "No, no, colonel, you are too deep for me!"

WILSON ENUMERATES INSULTS FROM HUERTA

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Washington, April 20.—Congress convened at 3 o'clock this afternoon in joint session to receive a message from the president which was as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Congress:

"It is my duty to call your attention to a situation which has arisen in our dealings with General Victoriano Huerta at Mexico City which calls for action and to ask your advice and co-operation in acting upon it. On the ninth of April a paymaster of the United States steamship Delphin landed at Irturide bridge at Tampico with a whaleboat and a boat's crew to take off certain supplies needed by his ship and while engaged in loading the boat was arrested by an officer and squad of men of the army of General Huerta. The officer who made the arrest was proceeding up one of the streets of the town with his prisoners when met by an officer of higher authority who ordered him to return to the landing and await orders, and within an hour and a half from the time of the arrest, orders were received from the commander of the Huertista forces at Tampico for the release of the paymaster and his men. The release was followed by apologies from the commander and later by an expression of regret by General Huerta himself. General Huerta urged that martial law obtained at the time at Tampico; that orders had been issued that no one should be allowed to land at the Irturide bridge and that our sailors had no right to land there. Our naval commanders at the port had not been notified of any such prohibition, and even if they had been, the only justifiable course open to the local authorities would have been to request the paymaster and his crew to withdraw and to lodge a protest with the commanding officer of the fleet.

"Admiral Mayo regarded the arrest as so serious an affront that he was not satisfied with the apologies offered but demanded that the flag of the United States be saluted with special ceremony by the military commander of the port.

"The incident cannot be regarded as a trivial one, especially as two of the men arrested were taken from the territory of the United States; but had it stood itself it might have been attributed to the ignorance or arrogance of a single officer.

"Unfortunately, it was not an isolated case. A series of incidents have recently occurred which cannot but create the impression that the representatives of General Huerta were willing to go out of their way to show disrespect for the dignity and rights of this government and felt perfectly safe in doing what they pleased, making free to show in many ways their irritation and contempt.

"A few days after the incident at Tampico, an orderly from the U. S. S. Minnesota was arrested at Vera Cruz while ashore in uniform to obtain the ship's mail and was for a time thrown into jail.

"An official dispatch from this government to its embassy at Mexico City was withheld by the authorities of the telegraphic service until peremptorily demanded by our charge d'affaires in person.

"So far as I can learn, such wrongs and annoyances have been suffered to occur only against representatives of the United States. I have heard of no complaints from other governments of similar treatment.

"Subsequent explanations and formal apologies did not and could not alter the popular impression, which it is possible, it had been the object of the Huertista authorities to create, that the government of the United States was being singled out and might be singled out with impunity for slights and affronts in retaliation for its refusal to recognize the pretensions of General Huerta to be regarded as the constitutional provisional president of the Republic of Mexico.

"The manifest danger of such a situation was that such offenses might grow from bad to worse until something happened of so gross and intolerable a sort as to lead directly and inevitably to armed conflict. It was necessary that the apologies of General Huerta and his representatives should go much further, that they should be such as to attract the attention of the whole population to their significance and such as to impress upon General Huerta himself the necessity of seeing to it that no further occasion for explanation and professed regrets should arise.

"I, therefore, felt it my duty to sustain Admiral Mayo in the whole of his demand and to insist that the flag of the United States should be saluted in such a way as to indicate a new spirit and attitude on the part of the Huertistas.

"Such a salute General Huerta has refused and I have come to ask your approval and support in the course I now propose to pursue.

"This government, can I earnestly hope, in no circumstances be forced into war with the people of Mexico. Mexico is torn by civil strife. If we are to accept the terms of its own constitution, it has no government. General Huerta has set his power up in the city of Mexico, such as it is, without right and by methods for which there can be no justification. Only part of the country is under his control. If armed conflict should unhappily come a result of his attitude of personal resentment towards this government, we should be fighting only General Huerta and those who adhere to him and give him their support, and our object would be only to restore to the people of the distracted republic the opportunity to set up again their own laws and their own government.

"But I earnestly hope that war is not now in question. I believe that I speak for the American people when I say that we do not desire to control in any degree the affairs of our sister republic. Our feeling for the people of Mexico is one of deep and genuine friendship, and everything that we have so far done or refrained from doing has proceeded from our desire to help them, not to hinder or embarrass them. We would not wish even to exercise the good offices of friendship without their welcome and consent. The people of Mexico are entitled to settle their own domestic affairs in their own way, and we sincerely desire to respect their right. The present situation need have none of the grave implications of interference if we deal with it promptly, firmly and wisely.

"No doubt I could do what is necessary in the circumstances to enforce respect for our government without recourse to the congress and yet not exceed my constitutional powers as president, but I do not wish to act on a matter possibly of so grave consequence except in close conference and co-operation with both the senate and house.

"I, therefore, come to ask your approval that I should use the armed forces of the United States in such ways and to such an extent as may be necessary to obtain from General Huerta and his adherents the fullest recognition of the rights and dignity of the United States, even amidst the distressing conditions now unhappily obtaining in Mexico.

"There can, in what we do, be no thought of aggression or of selfish aggrandizement. We seek to maintain the dignity and authority of the United States only because we wish always to keep our great influence unimpaired for the uses of liberty, both in the United States and wherever else it may be employed for the benefit of mankind.

"At 3:30 o'clock the house foreign affairs committee met in special session to consider the following resolution:

"Resolved, by the senate and the house of representatives in congress assembled, that the president of the United States is justified in the employment of armed forces of the United States to enforce demands made upon Victoriano Huerta for unequivocal amendments to the government of the United States for affronts and indignities committed against this government by General Huerta and his representatives."

It is expected that the resolution will be reported to the house today.

At Trinity M. E. Church.

The Rev. C. C. Marshall, pastor of Trinity Church, at the Sunday morning service preached upon the "Resurrection Power of the Church." He spoke of the church in the different stages of its history referred to many of the great revivals and the work of Billy Sunday, the great future in store for it, the time of its greatest usefulness being dependent only upon the awakening of its present membership to the wonderful opportunities of this day and generation. His presentation of the subject was an inspiration to the individual and should be the forerunner of a greater and more widespread interest in the church and its work. At the evening service the pastor delivered the fifth sermon of the course on the essence of religion, his subject: "Was Christ Tempted as We Are." The vested choir furnished special music at both morning and evening services.

On Sunday evening next the sixth of the series of lectures on great lives and epochs by the pastor, the subject will be John Knox, the Reformer of Scotland. This lecture will be illustrated by the stereopticon.

Lecture Greatly Enjoyed.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES.

Tracy Dows of Rhinebeck has purchased for his personal use a Franklin runabout from Forsyth & Davis that is said to be the finest appearing car ever seen in Kingston.

Forsyth & Davis have sold a Studebaker four-cylinder touring car to Jacob H. Tremper, Jr.

O. M. Kennedy, proprietor of the Central Garage, has just sold and made delivery of a Reo touring car to S. Baker & Son, Rondout.

What promises to be the most practical efficiency test in the history of automobilism will occur on Friday morning, May 1, when every Franklin dealer in the country will discontinue the regular gasoline tank on his Six-Thirty Franklin, put on a one gallon can and under the supervision of automobile club officers and other impartial observers will go out and see how far he can go on a gallon of gasoline. There will be from 150 to 200 cars rolling up economy figures in all parts of the country at the same time under every kind of road and weather conditions. The routes selected will cover city pavements, rough country roads and up and down grades. It will be straight driving throughout, a test of the actual efficiency of each car. This trial will show what the cars are actually doing and can do in their daily work. Every car will be a stock model, with the same equipment and alike in every detail. Forsyth & Davis will enter this test and expect to be well up toward the head of the list.

About a mile above the concrete bridge at Boiceville there is a piece of the worst road in the county and motorists will do well to avoid it.

Dazed the Crank.

David P. Barrows, while acting president of the University of California, one day received a queer visitor. Lean and terribly earnest, the man broke into Barrows' study.

"I am the prophet Micah," he announced, "and I have a need for your service. The world is soon to come to an end. Could you not spread the tidings through the university?"

Dr. Barrows shook his visitor by the hand, collected his thoughts and replied: "I believe that at no time was there such a crying need for prophets. But, unfortunately, prophesying is an art with which I am unfamiliar. I am not even in close sympathy with it and, as I am unable to comprehend what you have accomplished, I confess inability to participate as a prognosticator."

Whether it was the unexpected reply or the quick fire of so many words that dazed the visitor will never be known. Certain it is the man backed to the door and uttered the inadequate reply, "Yes."—San Francisco Chronicle.

Gentlemen of Leisure.

One of the upper ten thousand, once visiting America, accepted the hospitality of a gentleman in New York. When taking farewell of his host the latter asked him what he thought of the American people.

"Well," answered the nobleman, "I like them immensely, but I miss something."

"What is that?" asked the Yankee. "I miss the aristocracy," replied the Englishman.

"What are they?" naively asked his host.

"The aristocracy!" said the nobleman in a somewhat surprised tone of voice. "Why, they are people who do nothing, you know; whose fathers did nothing, you know; whose grandfathers did nothing, you know—in fact, the aristocracy!"

Here he was interrupted by the American, who chimed in with, "Oh, we've plenty of them over here, but we don't call them aristocracy—we call them tramps."—Exchange.

Washington's Only Joke.

The only admirable quality in which Washington was deficient was humor. One of the very few jests he ever made—perhaps the only one—has descended to posterity on the authority of his aid-de-camp, Colonel Humphreys.

General Washington rather prided himself on his riding, so the colonel one day when they were out hunting together dared him to follow over one particular hedge. The challenge was accepted, and Humphreys led the way. He took the leap boldly, but to his consternation found that he had mistaken the spot and was sunk up to his horse's girth in a quagmire. The general either knew the ground better or had suspected something, for, following at an easy pace, he reined up at the hedge and, looking over at his engulfed aid, exclaimed, "No, no, colonel, you are too deep for me!"

MORSE STEAMER FAST IN THE MUD

The steamer Inoquois, of the Morse line, bound from Albany to New York, ran aground at West Camp Sunday night and is still fast on the middle ground. The accident happened at high tide when there was a heavy cargo of freight and a large number of passengers aboard. The whistles of distress were heard by the steamers C. W. Morse and Mowhawk and they tried in vain to pull the vessel off the mud bank. This morning word was sent to the Cornell towing office in this city and the tugs Washburn, Dickson and Young were sent up the river and worked for an hour but were unable to dislodge the Inoquois. Finally it was deemed expedient to send to Albany for barges to take out the cargo of freight so that the vessel could be lightened. It was thought that with another high tide it would be possible to float the stranded steamer.

While the Washburn was pulling on the boat a cable became fastened to her propeller and it was necessary to tow her back to Rondout. She will be sent to New York to be hauled out on dry dock.

Massaged With Nettles.

Nettles are said to be an almost certain proof that man has lived on the spot. One British species, the so called Roman nettle, is said to be found only where the Romans have been. Cotes, the seventeenth century herbalist, explains, "It grows both at the town of Lidde, by Romney, and in the streets of the town of Romney, in Kent, where Julius Caesar landed, with his soldiers, and abode there a certain time, and for the growing of it in that place it is reported that the soldiers brought some of the seeds with them and sowed it there for their use to rub and chafe their limbs when through extreme cold they should be stiff and benumbed, being told before they came from home that the climate of Britain was so extreme cold it was not to be endured without some friction."

Tale of the Iron Duke.

The Duke of Wellington, if he did not confer commissions in the army upon little boys, went one better in the way of promise. It is Grant Duff who tells the tale in his diary. "Dined with the Spencer Walpoles." She told a story of playing as a child in the gardens of Apsley house. The old duke came out, and the children stood in a row while he passed. He stopped and said to one of them: "You are a very nice little fellow. When you are old enough I will give you a commission in the guards." "But I am a girl, Mr. Dook," said the child.

THE NATIONAL GRANGE

Conducted by Charles M. Gardner, Editor of the National Grange, Westfield, Mass.

GRANGE EVENT IN MICHIGAN

Farmers, Merchants and Manufacturers Held a Big "Get Together" Celebration.

A recent Grange event in Michigan which vividly illustrated the Grange purpose of federating all local forces in a rural community for genuine advance work, has attracted widespread attention throughout the country.

The merchants and business men of Adrian, Mich., combined with the Granges and the farmers of Lawrence county in planning a "get together celebration" in Adrian that lasted a full week, known as "gala week." The merchants all opened their stores and show windows to be used for exhibits of farm products, and also the factory productions of the city. Fifteen Granges responded to invitations by making exhibitions and scores of farmers made individual exhibits, suitable prizes being awarded in a variety of different classes.

The city was gaily decorated throughout and, combined with the beautiful window displays, made a charming scene. The principal bank in the city opened up its entire building and made it the Grange headquarters of the week, to which hundreds of patrons came from all parts of Lawrence county and made themselves at home. One room was fitted up with tables, where the country people could eat their lunches, hot coffee being served by the Grange. A good speaking program was carried out each day, with large audiences, among the speakers of note being Dr. Harvey W. Wiley of Washington and the state dairy and food commissioner of Michigan.

The "gala week" ended with a great industrial parade, two miles in length, representing the agricultural and manufactured products of Lawrence county. Many beautiful floats were in line and Madison Grange won the first prize of $20, for the best float in the agricultural division. The parade was witnessed by thousands of people from all parts of the country, and the effect of the whole event has been to draw much more closely together the farmers and business men of that section and to pave the way for many forward movements along progressive lines for the future.

GRANGE AND FASHIONS.

The subject of modern woman's dress gets attention everywhere these days, in churches as well as elsewhere, and so the Grange is strictly in fashion when it takes a hand. At a big Pomona meeting in Pennsylvania the subject furnished a full afternoon's discussion and concluded by the unanimous adoption of the following sweeping resolutions:

"Resolved, That in recognition and appreciation of the efforts put forth by women in other states, in the interest of dress reform, which will meet the needs of thousands of modest, sensible, beauty-loving American women;

"Resolved, That this Pomona Grange, No. 23, Patrons of Husbandry, fall into line to aid and abet the demand of our sisters in other states, by the manufacture of suits and patterns, which will furnish up-to-date, attractive designs reflecting the taste of such refined and dignified womanhood, rather than the spectacular and pernicious modes now prevalent and suggestive to good morals.

"Resolved, That active work be taken up at once through organization, press and publicity work, to free us from our bondage of self-appointed arbiters of fashion, and looking towards the evolving of a style in apparel for women in which modesty, utility and artistic effort may all find free expression."

GRANGE AND FARM CREDIT.

Recent events have put the Grange at the forefront in the struggle for some system of adequate rural credit, which is now actively in progress at Washington and the organization is recognized there as the champion of the farmers of the country, in their effort to provide some means by which reasonable interest rates can be secured by the farm industry upon such loans as it desires to make, for improvements and for extensions.

Many bills are now pending before congress that establish rural credit plans of various sorts, but most of these have the appearance of being framed to promote the banking interests of the country, at the expense of the farmers, rather than by any sincere purpose to help the farmer in his need. Consequently the Grange is strongly opposing many of these bills, and is coming out squarely for a clear farm credit policy.

Alfalfa Week.

Granges all through the Pacific northwest have taken hold heartily in the "alfalfa week" movement, that is expected to greatly stimulate interest in alfalfa growing, with a consequent benefit to agriculture in all that section.

Peace Work.

Granges in many sections are taking up actively the peace work of the country, and by speakers and discussions are bringing this live topic widely before their members.

Grave Oversight.

Hank—"Yes; Kelley's been under bonds to keep the peace for some time." Bill—"I wish I'd known. I've missed several fine chances to call him a liar!"

JOHNSON IS A GENEROUS FOE

Ivan Olson, Veteran Player, Praised Washington Whirlwind for Ability to Curb Bean Ball.

"Walter Johnson is the most generous foe that Cleveland has in the American league," says Ivan Olson. "Just suppose that man ever mixed in a few bean balls. With that terrific gun of his, he would have half the batters standing with one foot in the water bucket."

"But either he is afraid of his own strength, for he might kill a man by beaming him, or realizes that he has so much stuff that it is not necessary for him to resort to methods adopted by pitchers of inferior ability."

Of all the Naps, none has come as close to being hit by the Coffeyville wender as did Olson in a game at Washington last June. It was the game in which Gregg opposed Johnson, and Cleveland won by a score of 5 to 0. Doc Johnson opened the contest with a home run over the right field fence. Olson came next. He hugged the plate and watched Johnson most intently.

Zip, came the ball from Johnson's hand. Down went Olson as the ball hurtled past Catcher Ahnsmith. To this day Olson does not know whether or not Johnson really meant it. But it was a mighty lucky thing for Ole that he was not counting his money at that particular moment, for had he not ducked his big league days might have been over, as the ball would have struck him full upon the temple.

But it did not scare the Swede. He fled out to Milan that time up, and before the game had come to an end had made two singles. Olson, by the way, batted 400 against Johnson last season, and was the only one of the regulars who was not fanned by the cyclonic twirler. Johnson whiffed the Naps 39 times during the campaign, but Olson was the one to escape. Johnson and Lajoie each fanned twice.

CHANGES IN PLAYING RULES

Federal League Expected to Abide by Rulings Just the Same as "Organized Ball" Teams.

Three radical changes have been made in the playing rules that will govern baseball wherever it is played. The Federal league is expected to abide by the changes just the same as the so-called "organized baseball" teams. Probably the most important change is the one that will prevent the coach at third base from stopping or holding up a runner. If the coach puts his hands on the runner the latter is out. Under the old rules the coach was permitted to put his hands on the runner.

Another improvement in the rules is that the coach can encourage the batter, runner, or, in fact, anybody on his own side. In the old way the umpire used to rule against a coach shouting to the batter. Another change stipulates that if an umpire is hit by a ball on fair ground, play continues just the same as though nothing happened. Last year the batter was often sent to hit over after the umpire had been hit by the batted ball. It is also ruled that a pitcher can deliver the ball without danger of having a balk called on him as long as every foot is back of or on the pitcher's plate. Now, even if a pitcher should drop the ball accidentally a balk is called on him. Such matters used to be left to the discretion of the umpire.

When a player knocks a home run over the fence he must touch every base. If an attempt is made to hinder the catcher from throwing, the batter only is out, and not the runner also, if he is nailed. The runner gets two bases if a fielder throws up his glove, cap or the like to stop the progress of the ball. If a ball catches in the screen back of the batter the runners can take only two bases.

Doc Scanlon Reinstated.

Doc Scanlon, former Brooklyn pitcher, has been reinstated by the national commission. He quit the game a few years ago to take up the profession of a doctor. He is going to manage a Brooklyn semi-pro team.

No Choice.

Music Born of Sorrow.

There is no nation naturally musical, according to Henri Bidou, critic and historian. If a nation is musical, he says, it is because it has passed through such tribulation that it has been driven to express its sorrow and anxiety in its airs and compositions. Bach, he declares, is the culminating expression of sufferings induced in Germany by the Thirty Years' war, fifty years before Bach's time.

People sing "like cowards," he continues, to keep up their spirits in bad moments, and he finds that the real countries of music are nearly all frontier provinces exposed to external vicissitudes.

England he finds exempt to a large extent from the occasions in which poets "learn in suffering what they teach in song" because it is protected from invasion by the girdle of the seas. Music, then

ORSE STEAMER FAST IN THE MUD

The steamer Iroquois, of the Morse line, bound from Albany to New York, ran aground at West Camp Sunday night and is still fast on the middle ground. The accident happened at high tide when there was a heavy cargo of freight and a large number of passengers aboard. The whistles of distress were heard from the steamers C. W. Morse and Mowk and they tried in vain to pull the vessel off the mud bank. This morning word was sent to the Correll towing office in this city and the Messrs. Washburn, Dickson and Young were sent up the river and worked for an hour but were unable to dislodge the Iroquois. Finally it was deemed expedient to send to Albany for barges to take out the cargo of freight so that the vessel could be lightened. It was thought that with another high tide it would be possible to float the stranded steamer.

While the Washburn was pulling on the boat a cable became fastened to her propeller and it was necessary to tow her back to Rondout. She will be sent to New York to be hauled out on dry dock.

Massaged With Nettles.

Nettles are said to be an almost certain proof that man has lived on the spot. One British species, the so called Roman nettle, is said to be found only where the Romans have been. Coles, the seventeenth century herbalist, explains, "It grows both at the town of Lidde, by Romney, and in the streets of the town of Romney, in Kent, where Julius Caesar landed, with his soldiers, and abode there a certain time, and for the growing of it in that place it is reported that the soldiers brought some of the seeds with them and sowed it there for their use to rub and chafe their limbs when through extreme cold they should be stiff and benumbed, being told before they came from home that the climate of Britain was so extreme cold it was not to be endured without some friction."

Tale of the Iron Duke.

The Duke of Wellington, if he did not confer commissions in the army upon little boys, went one better in the way of promise. It is Grant Duff who tells the tale in his diary. "Dined with the Spencer Walpoles. She told a story of playing as a child in the gardens of Apsley house. The old duke came out, and the children stood in a row while he passed. He stopped and said to one of them: 'You are a very nice little fellow. When you are old enough I will give you a commission in the guards.' 'But I am a girl, Mr. Duke,' said the child."

THE NATIONAL GRANGE

Conducted by Charles M. Gardner, Editor of the National Grange, Westfield, Mass.

GRANGE EVENT IN MICHIGAN

Farmers, Merchants and Manufacturers Held a Big "Get Together" Celebration.

A recent Grange event in Michigan which vividly illustrated the Grange purpose of federating all local forces in a rural community for genuine advance work, has attracted widespread attention throughout the country.

The merchants and business men of Adrian, Mich., combined with the Granges and the farmers of Lawrence county in planning a "get together celebration" in Adrian that lasted a full week, known as "gala week." The merchants all opened their stores and show windows to be used for exhibits of farm products, and also the factory productions of the city. Fifteen Granges responded to invitations by making exhibitions and scores of farmers made individual exhibits, suitable prizes being awarded in a variety of different classes.

The city was gaily decorated throughout and, combined with the beautiful window displays, made a charming scene. The principal bank in the city opened up its entire building and made it the Grange headquarters of the week, to which hundreds of patrons came from all parts of Lawrence county and made themselves at home. One room was fitted up with tables, where the country people could eat their lunches, hot coffee being served by the Grange. A good speaking program was carried out each day, with large audiences, among the speakers of note being Dr. Harvey W. Wiley of Washington and the state dairy and food commissioner of Michigan.

The "gala week" ended with a great industrial parade, two miles in length, representing the agricultural and manufacturing products of Lawrence county. Many beautiful floats were in line and Madison Grange won the first prize of $20, for the best float in the agricultural division. The parade was witnessed by thousands of people from all parts of the country, and the effect of the whole event has been to draw much more closely together the farmers and business men of that section and to pave the way for many forward movements along progressive lines for the future.

GRANGE AND FASHIONS.

The subject of modern woman's dress gets attention everywhere these days, in churches as well as elsewhere, and so the Grange is strictly in fashion when it takes a hand. At a big Pomona meeting in Pennsylvania the subject furnished a full afternoon's discussion and concluded by the unanimous adoption of the following sweeping resolutions: "Resolved, That in recognition and appreciation of the efforts put forth by women in other states, in the interest of dress reform, which will meet the needs of thousands of modest, sensible, beauty-loving American women; "Resolved, That this Pomona Grange, No. 23, Patrons of Husbandry, fall into line to aid and abet the demand of our sisters in other states, by the manufacture of suits and patterns, which will furnish up-to-date, attractive designs reflecting the taste of such refined and dignified womanhood, rather than the spectacular and suggestive modes now prevalent and pernicious to good morals.

"Resolved, That active work be taken up at once through organization, press and publicity work, to free us from our bondage of self-appointed arbiters of fashion, and looking towards the evolving of a style in apparel for women in which modesty, utility and artistic effort may all find free expression."

GRANGE AND FARM CREDIT.

Recent events have put the Grange at the forefront in the struggle for some system of adequate rural credit, which is now actively in progress at Washington and the organization is recognized there as the champion of the farmers of the country, in their effort to provide some means by which reasonable interest rates can be secured by the farm industry upon such loans as it desires to make, for improvements and for extensions.

Many bills are now pending before congress that establish rural credit plans of various sorts, but most of these have the appearance of being framed to promote the banking interests of the country, at the expense of the farmers, rather than by any sincere purpose to help the farmer in his need. Consequently the Grange is strongly opposing many of these bills, and is coming out squarely for a clear farm credit policy.

CHANGES IN PLAYING RULES

Federal League Expected to Abide by Rules Just the Same as "Organized Ball" Teams.

Three radical changes have been made in the playing rules that will govern baseball wherever it is played. The Federal league is expected to abide by the changes just the same as the so-called "organized baseball" teams. Probably the most important change is the one that will prevent the coach at third base from stopping or holding up a runner. If the coach puts his hands on the runner the latter is out. Under the old rules the coach was permitted to put his hands on the runner.

Another improvement in the rules is that the coach can encourage the batter, runner, or, in fact, anybody on his own side. In the old way the umpire used to rule against a coach shouting to the batter. Another change stipulates that if an umpire is hit by a ball on fair ground, play continues just the same as though nothing happened. Last year the batter was often sent to hit over after the umpire had been hit by the batted ball. It is also ruled that a pitcher can deliver the ball without danger of having a balk called on him as long as either foot is back of or on the pitcher's plate. Now, even if a pitcher should drop the ball accidentally a balk is called on him. Such matters used to be left to the discretion of the umpire.

When a player knocks a home run over the fence he must touch every base. If an attempt is made to hinder the catcher from throwing, the batter only is out, and not the runner also, if he is nailed. The runner gets two bases if a fielder throws up his glove, cap or the like to stop the progress of the ball. If a ball catches in the screen back of the batter the runners can take only two bases.

Music Born of Sorrow.

There is no nation naturally musical, according to Henri Bidou, critic and historian. If a nation is musical, he says, it is because it has passed through such tribulation that it has been driven to express its sorrow and anxiety in its airs and compositions. Bach, he declares, is the culminating expression of sufferings induced in Germany by the Thirty Years' war, fifty years before Bach's time.

People sing "like cowards," he continues, to keep up their spirits in bad moments, and he finds that the real countries of music are nearly all frontier provinces exposed to external vicissitudes.

England he finds exempt to a large extent from the occasions in which poets "learn in suffering what they teach in song" because it is protected from invasion by the girdle of the seas. Music, then, he argues, is not an art of peace; it originates in strife and anxiety, not in tranquility and concord. The overprosperous countries, he discovers, "not only have no history; they have no music."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

mail. He tossed a letter to me.

"That's the sort of thing I'm continually receiving," he said.

"The letter ran:

"Dear Editor—The poem inclosed is original in me, and I had no help in thinking out same. It is a true poem. I wrote it myself, and there is more where it came from if I had any inducement to think same out. You may say 'Original' at the top of same, for every word is by 'THE AUTHOR.'"

When Soldiers Were Flogged.

It would have needed a very alluring form of advertisement indeed to attract men to the English army a hundred years ago. Writing of that period a writer says: "Flogging was almost universal. The maximum number of lashes were gradually reduced from 1,500 to 300, but the notion that discipline could not be maintained without summary punishment continued to be believed, and Wellington himself dealt with flagrant cases by hanging the culprits upon trees in the public roads. One result was that only men belonging to the lowest classes would join the army." In 1771 a sentinel in the guards was flogged in St. James' park so severely that he subsequently died raving mad. His offense consisted of saying that "there was no more encouragement for a good soldier than for a bad one."

Too Much Cavity.

One afternoon an esteemed citizen went into a barber shop to have his briars reaped, but no sooner had he taken a seat in one of the chairs than he dropped off into heavy slumber. Apparently the shave artist was having his own troubles in manipulating the customer, and after making several attempts he thoughtfully paused.

"Excuse me, sir," said he, gently shaking the man in the chair, "but would you mind waking up? I can't shave you while you are asleep."

"Can't shave me while I'm asleep," exclaimed the victim, with a wondering expression. "Why not?"

"Because," explained the barber as softly as possible, "when you fall into slumber your mouth opens so wide that I can't find your face."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, April 20.—"Get the batter in the hole; always aim to get the first two balls pitched to him over the plate." This is the advice handed out by Tom Daly, once one of the greatest catchers that ever donned a mask, who now is coaching the young Yankee pitchers. Daly's advice is for the sand-lot youngster who has the ambition to become a big league twirler some day.

"The pitcher who can get the first two balls over the plate usually has the whiphand," declared Daly. "Very few batters offer at the first ball, and if it happens to be a strike they hardly ever offer at the second. If the pitcher can shoot two straight over the plate, it's pretty much of a cinch that they will be called strikes and the batter will be in a hole."

"You will find that the best pitchers of the present day are men who never miss the first two balls. Mathewson, Johnson, Walsh, Bender, Wood, and the other stars always try to get the first two balls over the plate or mighty near the corners, and that's why they have been so successful. If they don't strike out their man it's seldom that the man on whom they get two strikes on the first two balls will do much damage as the batter is rather nervous and knows he has only one chance left. Quite often, in his nervousness, he will swing at the third ball, whether it is good or bad, for fear that it will be a called one, and if he doesn't miss he seldom gets a drive that will do much damage."

"Of course, a pitcher takes a chance that by putting the first two balls over that the batter will swing at it. But it is rarely that a batter swings at the first ball, unless the manager of the opposing team has figured out that line of attack—something that happens infrequently."

Golfers in England have become terribly excited over the question as to which stroke is the most valuable. So heated has become the discussion that the peace-loving residents are fearful that a large number of duels will be fought out to acquit the honor of the various gentlemen on one side whose ideas on this question have been ridiculed by the folk on the other side.

The question was put to 56 of the best golfers in England. Forty-five answers came in. Of these 23 thought the putt the most valuable, while 22 stood out for the approach, headed the faction that favored the putt, while J. H. Taylor, one of the best golfers the game has ever known, and a man almost without a peer as a driver, headed the faction that declared the approach shot was the best one in the game.

In rebuttal, the putting clan declares that an indifferent drive on the first shot from the tee rarely meant an extra stroke because on his second drive the golfer had a good chance to make up for the poor first drive, whereas, if a golfer missed a short putt, it certainly meant an extra stroke.

Just now the whole British domain is mightily worked up over this question, and the different factions are so busily calling each other names, and declaring that the other doesn't know a darned thing about what he's talking about, that George, the well-known king, is fearful those fellows will get to fighting among themselves with something more deadly than fists, with the result that so much carnage will be done that only a handful of golfing Brits will be on hand next month to do battle with the American invaders.

to which stroke is the most valuable. So heated has become the discussion that the peace-loving residents are fearful that a large number of duels will be fought out to acquit the honor of the various gentlemen on one side whose ideas on this question have been ridiculed by the folk on the other side.

The question was put to 56 of the best golfers in England. Forty-five answers came in. Of these 23 thought the putt the most valuable, while 22 stood out for the approach, headed the faction that favored the putt, while J. H. Taylor, one of the best golfers the game has ever known, and a man almost without a peer as a driver, headed the faction that declared the approach shot was the best one in the game.

The approach clan asserted that this shot was the most valuable because of the psychological effect it had upon a player. A good drive from the tee gave a player confidence; a poor one made him nervous and spoiled his natural effectiveness for the next shots and also the putt. In rebuttal, the putting clan declared that an indifferent drive on the first shot from the tee rarely meant an extra stroke because on his second drive the golfer had a good chance to make up for the poor first drive, whereas, if a golfer missed a short putt, it certainly meant an extra stroke.

Just now the whole British domain is mightily worked up over this question, and the different factions are so busily calling each other names, and declaring that the other doesn't know a darned thing about what he's talking about, that George, the well-known king, is fearful those fellows will get to fighting among themselves with something more deadly than fists, with the result that so much carnage will be done that a handful of golfing Britishers will be on hand next month to do battle with the American invaders.
